The Experience of a Lifetime
People to People Expands Global Awareness for New Buffalo Teen

by M.D. Cunningham

Jaylun Cook is used to drawing attention from others.
Since the 17-year-old New Buffalo (Mich.) junior’s unique first name has drawn attention from petty bullies throughout his life, Jaylun, or Jay, decided if anyone was going to crack jokes about him or his name, he’d beat them to the punchline.

But this outgoing youth has more than just jokes on his mind.
In fact, Cook, who’s an aspiring musician, spends most of his hours outside of class — and occasionally moments between classes...
— spreading the word about People to People Ambassador Programs.

“It allows students to really gain the best education possible through education travel,” Cook said at Journeyman Distillery in Three Oaks, Mich., where he suggested we meet for our interview. Turns out, Cook has played a few gigs here to help raise tuition for People to People, which he participated in last year. The trip to Australia involved about 30 other students from across the country.

Founded by President Dwight Eisenhower in 1956, People to People was created so students from across the globe could learn and explore the cultures and history of other countries and continents. It also was designed to bring peace through educational travel.

Located in Spokane, Wash., it has more than 200 employees and more than 20,000 ambassadors traveling annually. Its offerings include:

- Student Ambassador Programs — international educational travel on all seven continents for students in grades five through 12 and college.
- Leadership Ambassador Programs — domestic educational travel featuring leadership development and college preparation opportunities for students in grades five through 12.
- Citizen Ambassador Programs — international professional programs to promote growth, interaction and learning across many professions.
- Sports Ambassador Programs — international sports training for student athletes in grades five through 12.

Highlights over the years have included ambassadors being briefed by Robert Kennedy while enroute to Europe in 1962, to students meeting Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in 1987 and Queen Elizabeth II in England in 1999.

Cook's style and manner reflect his interest in music. He’s wearing a tight-fitting beanie, the top two buttons of his aqua flannel are undone and he wears more than a few bracelets around his wrist: one for a favorite band, Slipknot, the other for tornado relief.

What’s interesting about Cook is how he’s transformed his extroverted juvenile hijinks into a highly marketable talent. When he first learned about People to People after attending a presentation in Kalamazoo, Mich., he was shocked to discover the program’s cost, but when he learned that 80 percent of participants are later accepted into the college of his/her choice, he didn’t look back.

“I was completely into it,” he said. “I fell head over heels for it. I felt that this was something that I needed to do.”

“My parents were very strict with me in saying if you want to do this, then you have to come up with the tuition by yourself, but that doesn’t mean that they just, like, you know, said, ‘Here, do this now,’

Photographing the view looking down a foggy mountain, Jay Cook says his first reaction was, “Oh jeez! We’re repelling down that?”
and kicked me out the door. No, they were very supportive of me. They helped me out.”

Through what Cook called the BFFs — Businesses, Family and Friends — of fundraising, he was able to come up with more than $8,000 to pay for People to People, an experience he called the time of his life. Tuition, which hinges on the length, destination and itinerary of the individual’s plans, ranges between $4,500 and $7,999. “It was really an experience that I can’t forget because of all the sites I was able to see and all the things I was able to learn about Australia,” he said. “My biggest benefit from it was the friends that I made.”

The 2 1/2-week trip started off kind of rocky with a 14-hour flight from Los Angeles that touched down in Sydney during a downpour on a day a trip to the beach was scheduled.

The overall experience, however, included visits to a former government workhouse for convicts called the Hyde Park Barracks, Kakadu National Park and the Sydney Opera House, which Cook was given the opportunity to sing at — unofficially.

“I was kind of in my own train of thought because I was just so, like, in shock of the whole entire opera house and just looking around it seeing all the seats and seeing some of the workers prepare for the next show, and then next thing I know, I see in the corner of my eye everybody staring at me. I’m like what? Apparently, word got out that I was a musician and I do sing, so they had me sing a song,” he said, retelling the story animatedly. “The acoustics in there were just unbelievable.”
Another indelible experience included spending time on an Aboriginal campground.

“They hunt and cook all day, sleeping only like five or six hours,” said Cook, who admitted he was not cut out for spear throwing, not even being able to find the mark on a stationary cardboard kangaroo, although he did use the opportunity to unleash an impression of the late, charismatic wildlife expert Steve Irwin.

Overall, Cook, who noted small differences, such as the absence of his favorite brand of pop and a dazzling array of candy he’d never experienced, saw more similarities than differences between the U.S. and Australian ways of life, although he did describe the Aboriginal way as one still separate from the mainstream. He said all locals he encountered were very welcoming.

“Australians thought very highly of U.S. kids, which was the oddest thing,” he said. “Whenever we’d go around the streets and talk...they’d walk up to us and say, ‘Oh, my God, are you guys American? Like, yeah, we’re American. We’re actually on this People to People delegation.’”

Despite invitations to party with locals, Cook said their strict time schedule kept them from taking up these occasional offers, but this didn’t stop teen hormones from throbbing.

“The girls would be freaking out over the U.S. guys cause we’re, you know, just walking around talking in our own accents, and then the U.S. girls would be freaking out over the Australian guys, and they’re this normally, like, this tall, masculine, One Direction-kind-of-looking guy.”

Kangaroos and wallabies (smaller kangaroos) can be seen in the grasslands of Australia.

The Experience

Along with a taste for kangaroo — I’m told it tastes just like chicken — one expression Cook picked up was the popular saying “sweet as.”

“The first time we heard someone say that, we were like, what did he say?,” Cook said, explaining that it means “good job” or “that’s awesome.”

“Ever since I heard that,” he continued, “I’ve been saying that a lot around my school and confusing people.”

So, what’s next for Cook? Naturally, he’s still fundraising. This summer, he hopes to take part in another People to People program, with a goal of raising the $7,000 in tuition to go to Europe.

“Love Letters”

Two actors in a longstanding relationship will take to the stage for a fundraiser production of A.R. Gurney’s “Love Letters” on Saturday and Sunday, March 1-2, at Footlight Theatre, 1705 Franklin St.

The plot is simple. Two actors, in this case Alicia Ebaugh and John Avila, read a lifetime of letters between friends and sometimes lovers. Melissa Gardner is a troubled artist from a rich family and Andrew Makepeace Ladd III is an ambitious “liberal Republican.” Their journey together is exposed through 50 years worth of correspondence.

“I think being so familiar with each other has helped us understand and convey the emotional nuances that come out in the play’s text,” Ebaugh said. “It sounds like you’re just watching these two people on stage read to each other, but it is surprisingly far from being boring.”

The play’s first act covers Melissa and Andy’s youth. They meet in second grade, start a correspondence when they’re sent off to boarding school and continue it once they’re at college. Some attempts are made at romance, but more often than not, they appear stuck in the friend zone. In other words, they’re only close when writing back and forth. Face to face, they’re at loose ends.

Performances are at 8 p.m. March 1 and 2 p.m. March 2. Tickets are $12. Because the show is a fundraiser, patron cards will not be accepted. Reservations are recommended by calling the Footlight Theatre box office at (219) 874-4035 or at www.footlightplayers.org.

Indoor Flea Market

New Troy (Mich.) Community Center, 13372 California Road, will host its indoor flea market Saturday, Feb. 22.

Past flea markets have included collectors’ knives, books, local food products, plants, tools, antiques, jewelry, hand-woven rugs, crafts, furniture and other housewares. Visitors can place orders for heirloom seed collections at the February markets, with seeds distributed in March. The center’s Used Book Store and Used Furniture Store will be open.

Vendor spaces are available for $10. The cost includes a table and chair. Contact Janna at (773) 275-1514, Del at (269) 985-3087 or info@centeroftheworld.net for reservations or more information.

The center will be open for dealer setup 6 to 7 p.m. EST Friday and 8 a.m. EST Saturday. Doors open to the public from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. EST Saturday. Admission is free, and a homecooked lunch can be purchased.

Proceeds from space rentals benefit the center, an all-volunteer facility run by the non-profit organization Friends of New Troy.

New Lakeshore Chief Named

Paul Labovitz has been named the new Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore superintendent, succeeding Costa Dillon, who retired in August 2013.

Labovitz, superintendent at Mississippi National River and Recreation Area in St. Paul, Minn., begins the new assignment May 18.

He started his NPS career in what is now the Northeast Regional Office in Philadelphia in 1988. As its outdoor recreation planner, he provided technical assistance through the Rivers, Trails and Conservation Assistance Program to project cooperators in Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia. He transferred to the Midwest Regional Office in 1989 and, as leader of the region’s RTCA program working from Cuyahoga Valley National Park in Brecksville, Ohio, provided planning and technical assistance to projects in Ohio and throughout the 13-state region.

Labovitz assisted in the creation of the $400 million CLEA-NOhio program in 2001, provided early planning and assistance in the creation of the Ohio & Erie Canal National Heritage CanalWay and successfully expanded the RTCA program in the region with three new field offices while doubling the Midwest RTCA budget in five years.

Labovitz accepted his first superintendent position with the Mississippi NRRA in early 2007. During his tenure, the park has demonstrated urban youth engagement through the Urban Wilderness Canoe Adventures Program, providing an introductory outdoor experience to more than 50,000 students. He has overseen the continuation of several environmental education programs — Big River Journey and Journey to the Falls — that have served more than 60,000 students over the past decade.

Prior to his NPS career, Labovitz managed a 10,000 acre privately owned woodland in southwest Pennsylvania.

Born in Camden, N.J., and raised in Philadelphia, Labovitz graduated from Penn State University with a bachelor of science degree in forest service and his master’s of business administration in 1987 from Frostburg State University in western Maryland. He has extensive international experience in Central and Eastern Europe’s national parks and protected areas.

“Beauty IS a Beast”

The Festival Players Guild Winter Arts Series continues with D.M. Larson’s “Beauty IS a Beast,” which offers a twist on typical fairy tales.

Directed by Duane Thompson, performances are at 7 p.m. Friday, Feb. 21, and 2 and 6 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 22, and 2 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 23, at Mainstreet Theatre, 807 Franklin St.

In the play, instead of focusing on outer beauty, a princess is turned “inside out.” Her outer beauty disappears and her inner ugliness is reflected in her outward appearance. Instead of having an evil witch, sorcerer or stepmother, the villain is selfishness itself. Instead of the cookie-cutter handsome prince, this one is blind.

The show is appropriate for all ages. Cast with local students from area schools, the performers range in age from 8 to 15.

Tickets are $5 for students and $10 for adults. Call the box office at (219) 874-4269 for reservations or additional information.

Calling All Artists

The Beacher is looking for someone to design the cover of our St. Patrick’s Day edition on March 13.

The image must be original artwork or photos not previously published in other venues and be family friendly. Submissions should be designed to fit the size of the cover space, which is a 7 1/2-inch square. We request they be submitted digitally in high-resolution JPEG or TIFF formats to drew@thebeacher.com.

Artists can stop by The Beacher with early designs to see if the work is something we are interested in. Artwork or photos not used may be saved for the ensuing year.

The submission deadline is noon Monday, March 3. Each person whose work appears on the cover will be recognized with a short story about him/her and a photo.

Anyone wanting more information should contact Editor Drew Tallackson at (219) 879-0088 or at drew@thebeacher.com.

IFG Annual Meeting

The International Friendship Gardens annual meeting is at 6 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 23, at Lindo’s restaurant, 3940 Franklin St., Michigan City.

A short business meeting that includes recognizing 2013 volunteers is planned, along with the presentation of the annual report, recognition of current board members and a preview of the upcoming season.

Make reservations by Wednesday, Feb. 19, to (219) 878-9885 or internationalfriendshipgardens@yahoo.com.

Annual Speech and Poetry Contest

The development of communication skills is a key objective of La Lumiere’s curriculum.

In pursuit of that goal, students are required to participate in the annual speech and poetry contest. During the first week of February, 11 students were invited to compete as finalists in the poetry division and four to compete in the original speech division.

Poetry winner Ming Washington, runner-up Lydia Costello and third-place winner Rowena Quinn.

The poetry contest was held in compliance with guidelines established by the Poetry Out Loud National Recitation Contest created by the National Endowment for the Arts and Poetry Foundation. Ming Washington, a freshman from Michigan City, won the contest and will compete at the state level Feb. 22. Lydia Costello, a junior from Chesterton, earned second place and will serve as alternate at the state competition. Rowena Quinn, a freshman from La Porte, came in third.

Junior Ana Kleihege of La Porte won the original speech division for her speech, “The Power of Pictures.”

The Poetry Out Loud finalists were: Dany Brooks, Michigan City; Lydia Costello, Chesterton; Charlie Falcone, Wilmette, Ill.; Hanah Fogel, Manteno, Ill.; Christopher Hohman, Rolling Prairie; Ian Miner, Ada, Mich.; Rowena Quinn, La Porte; Cora Schander, Long Beach; Bella Schuster, La Porte; and Stephanie Zaccone, Hobart.

Original speech finalists are: Emily Beach, South Bend; Livia Gazzolo, Harbert, Mich.; and Johanna Guentert, South Bend.

Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore

The following programs are through Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore:

- The Save the Tunes Council from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Friday, Feb. 21, at the Visitor Center.

The group meets the third Friday of each month. The center is at 1215 N. Indiana 49 just south of the U.S. 20 intersection in Porter.

- “Park in Focus” from 1 to 3 p.m. every Saturday through Dec. 27 at the Paul H. Douglas Center for Environmental Education.

Park staff will host special programs focusing on park resources, hot topics in research, new environmental films or guest speakers.

The center is on Lake Street north of U.S. 12 in the Miller Beach neighborhood of Gary. Call (219) 395-1821 for more information.

- “Kid’s Rule” from 1 to 3 p.m. every Sunday through Dec. 28 at the Indiana Dunes Visitor Center.

Join a ranger in the Visitor Center’s activity room for stories and activities. Children must be accompanied by an adult.

Call (219) 395-1882 for more information on all programs.

Indiana Dunes State Park

The following events are planned through Indiana Dunes State Park:

Saturday, Feb. 22
- 10 a.m. — “Snowshoe Shuffle.”

Meet a park interpreter in the Nature Center. Learn about snowshoes, then try on a pair for a short walk through the winter woods. A hike is still planned even if there isn’t enough snow.

- 2 p.m. — Winter Alive!

Meet at the Nature Center auditorium for a look at how park animals, some of which will be present, survive the winter.

Sunday, Feb. 23
- 10 a.m. — “Feed the Birds.”

Join a naturalist outside the Nature Center for the daily feeding. Get close views of chickadees, cardinals and woodpeckers.

- 2 p.m. — Winter Critter Hour.

Meet in the Nature Center Auditorium for a look at some of the center’s animals and how their cousins are surviving the winter outside.

Indiana Dunes State Park is at 1600 N. County Road 25 East (the north end of Indiana 49), Chesterton. Call (219) 926-1390 for more information.

Owl Prowl

Participate in an “Owl Prowl” at 7 p.m. EST Saturday, Feb. 22, at Sarett Nature Center, 2300 Benton Center Road, Benton Harbor, Mich.

Call (269) 927-4832 to register.
Student vocalists and pianists from Michigan City High School and Barker and Krueger middle schools traveled to Valparaiso High School on Feb. 1 to perform in the Indiana State School Music Association vocal solo and ensemble competition.

Twenty-four of the high school students received gold ratings and now will compete at the state solo and ensemble contest.

The results are:

Michigan City High School

- Freshman Rachel Lawrenz received a gold medal for her piano solo in Division III.
- Junior Pamela Foldenauer received a silver medal for her vocal solo in Division I.
- Junior Caitlin Martinez received a gold medal for her Division I vocal solo and will head to the state competition Saturday, Feb. 22.

A freshman girls’ trio comprised of Julia Wahl, Karmen Halfacre and Kaitlin Steinhiser received gold medals in Division II.

A quartet comprised of freshman Braxton Hervey, junior James Anthony, senior William Harber and sophomore Marcus Lester received a gold rating in Division I. They will head to the state competition.

Videos Have Field-to-Table Format

Indiana’s “CookIN Gone Wild” video series now teaches viewers not only how to prepare their wild game, but also how to harvest it.

The video series launched last year on Indiana DNR’s YouTube channel and initially focused only on cooking. Now, it includes everything viewers need to know to harvest the featured fish or game animal, a format called field-to-table.

The first episode in the new format highlights steelhead trout and coho salmon fishing on Trail Creek in Michigan City. Viewers will learn some steelhead and salmon biology, equipment requirements and fishing techniques, including some insider secrets.

Each video ends with a recipe for the harvested game. The steelhead episode offers a healthy, open-faced steelhead salad sandwich.

Episodes are at youtube.com/idnrvideos. New ones come out every other month. A downloadable cookbook and recipes are at wildlife.IN.gov/7562.htm. A selected recipe also appears in each issue of Outdoor Indiana magazine.

Next in the series is ice fishing at Trine State Recreation Area in Angola. Future episodes will feature dove hunting, squirrel hunting, wild edibles and urban fishing for catfish.

The Uptown Fashion Affair is back for a fabulous second year from 6:30 to 10 p.m. Friday, Feb. 21, at Barker Hall, 600 Franklin Square, Michigan City.

The fashion show showcases local boutiques, salons and artists working together to feature the latest trends and styles for women and men. There will be music, food, a cash bar, silent auction and runway event.

The show is a major fundraiser for the Michigan City Mainstreet Association, a 501(c)4 non-profit membership organization. The grassroots effort is part of the Indiana and National Mainstreet programs that follow a four-point approach to revitalization. It is the quiet parent of the Uptown Arts District and works to revitalize this core area of the historic downtown area in Michigan City.

Some of the participating businesses in this year’s event are The Closet, Elle Salon, Luxe Boutique, Lakefront Salon, Paris House of Bridal, Salon Cilla, Urban Soles, The Parlor, Darling, Timothy Jeffrey, Beyond Pink and LeRoc Salon.

Advance tickets are $15 or two for $25, or $20 each at the door. Advance tickets are available at the participating businesses, as well as Visit Michigan City LaPorte Visitors Bureau in Michigan City and LeRoc Salon in Valparaiso.

Enter Barker Hall through the red doors at Sixth and Franklin streets. Food will be provided by Fiesta Valenciana, Maxine’s, Arturo’s and From Scratch. A cash bar is planned. The after party is from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. at Sahara Restaurant, 827 Franklin St., Michigan City. The $5 cost will be donated to MCMA. The after party will have a DJ, free food and a cash bar. We ask that people prepay for the after party.

“I am so thrilled to be planning this Uptown Fashion Affair,” MCMA Chairwoman Abigale Thayer said. “It truly is an honor to be a part of a community I believe in. This year will be bigger and better than ever. We will have such an amazing mix of boutiques, salons, artists and volunteers working together. The generosity and excitement of not only the businesses but the public has been touching.”

Youngest R.O.S.E. Winner

Kayle Maffei might just be the youngest person to receive Visit Michigan City La Porte’s R.O.S.E. Award.

A 16-year-old high school student, Maffei has been a busser at McGinnis Pub in Michigan City since August. He was nominated by a customer who was impressed with the young man’s service.

“Oh my goodness, where to begin,” the customer wrote. “This is probably this young man’s first job. He was so attentive, courteous and friendly. This young man will go a long way with this kind of positive attitude.”

The monthly R.O.S.E. award goes to a local customer service worker who is nominated by customers for service above and beyond. Along with a framed certificate, winners receive a rose corsage with a $100 bill folded inside. McGinnis Pub always matches the award with another $100. R.O.S.E winners are invited to Visit Michigan City La Porte’s annual R.O.S.E. luncheon. Maffei also will be nominated for a statewide Hoosier Hospitality Award.

“I’m very excited, surprised and happy,” Maffei said. “I want to thank whoever nominated me. I work behind the scenes, and I don’t always come into contact with customers.”
Results of Christmas Bird Count

Seeing two bald eagles on a small patch of open water on Stone Lake was the highlight of the day for two local birders.

The sighting occurred during the 28th Annual Northeast La Porte County Christmas Bird Count on Dec. 16. One of the birds was mature, with the characteristic white head and tail. The other was immature, without the white markings. The appearance, according to a press release, is a testament to the conservation community, which brought the eagles back from the brink of extinction in the eastern United States in the 1970s.

Results of the December count have been collected and sent to the Indiana Audubon Society, which is gathering statewide data and forwarding it to the National Audubon Society. The national results will be published at www.audubon.org.

Also on Dec. 16, 13 other birders were scattered about the area counting birds by foot and in cars. The tally for the day was 3,826 individual birds of 48 species. One notable sighting in Hudson Township was 16 Lapland longspurs mixed in a group of horned larks. The highest count within the 15-mile circle was 731 American crows. Two great horned owls were spotted in a Springfield Township backyard. The total of four pileated woodpeckers was higher than normal and indicated what seems to be an increased population for the crow-sized bird.

“Eating Well for Living Healthy” Series

Adults interested in learning more about how foods affect our bodies are invited to attend the “Eating Well for Living Healthy” series at Westchester Public Library.

Unless noted, all programs, led by Registered Dietetic Technician Gia DeMartinis-Novak, are from 3:30 to 5 p.m. in the Bertha Wood meeting room at Thomas Library, 200 W. Indiana Ave., Chesterton. Registration is not necessary.

“Power Immunity: Fighting Seasonal Bugs Naturally” is from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 20. Learn how to use the body’s natural defense system to combat illnesses. DeMartinis-Novak also will discuss how to fight cold and flu bugs with nutrition and lifestyle modification to promote health and well-being any time of the year.

The final session, “Diabetes Self Care,” is Thursday, March 20.

DeMartinis-Novak earned her bachelor’s degree from Trinity Christian College with a biology major and chemistry minor. She also earned an associate’s degree in applied nutrition from Central Arizona College. She has worked at Kraft General Foods performing vitamin analysis of foods. She also served a dietetic internship at Methodist Hospitals in Gary and Merrillville and Methodist Cardiac Rehab Center and Outpatient Diabetes Clinic, and worked at Methodist Hospital in Merrillville.

Call the Reference Department at (219) 926-7696 for more information.

The cost is $15 per couple and $5 for each additional daughter. Pre-registration is required at least one week in advance or until the dance is full, whichever comes first. Registration fills up quickly.
La Porte County Library

The winter reading program continues through March 1 at all library locations for students in kindergarten through fifth grade. Activities, games, reading and other programs help earn rewards. Stop at any library to get started. Thirty participants will win entry into the grand prize event: a Lego Bridge Building Workshop and a ticket to Legoland in Schaumburg, Ill. Preschool-age children complete activities and attend programs with their parents to receive a prize.

Other library programs include:
- “Indiana’s Underground Railroad” from 6 to 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 20, at the main library, 904 Indiana Ave.
- “Travels in Japan” at 1 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 20, at the Coolspring branch, 7089 W. County Road 400 North.

Brendan Hubbs, who lived in Tokyo for a year, will discuss Japan’s varied islands, unique holidays and festivals and Japanese arts, folklore and food.

Citizen Science Workshop

Spencer Cortwright, Indiana University-Northwest biology professor, along with Shirley Heinze Land Trust staff, will lead a free frog-monitoring workshop from 7 to 8 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 19, at Meadowbrook Conservation Center and Preserve, 109 W. County Road 700 North, Valparaiso.

By monitoring frog populations, residents can collect large amounts of data that would otherwise be unattainable. The focus includes characteristics of each species, their preferred habitats and how to identify their calls. Participants receive data-collection protocol, survey sheet and CD with audio frog calls of various species from the region. New monitors will be assigned a preserve or natural area close to his/her home to monitor.

Call Shirley Heinze Land Trust at (219) 242-8558 and ask for Jim Erdelac or email jerdelac@heinze-trust.org to RSVP or for more information.

Students and their parents receive help in understanding, completing and filing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid.

College Goal Sunday is part of FAFSA Help Weekend at PNC. From 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 22, prospective students and their families can stop by Technology Building Room 265 for assistance in completing the FAFSA.

The application is required for students to be considered for federal and state grants, loans and scholarships at most colleges, universities and vocational/technical schools and must be filed by March 10 to be eligible for state aid. During the FAFSA Help Weekend, PNC financial-aid staff can help students and their families file the form online.

Students should attend College Goal Sunday with their parent(s) or guardian(s) and bring their parents’ completed 2013 IRS 1040 tax returns, W-2 Forms and other 2013 income and benefits information. Students who worked last year should bring their income information. Students 24 or older may attend alone and bring their completed 2013 IRS 1040 tax return, W-2 Form or other 2013 income and benefits information.

Students and parents are encouraged to apply for their U.S. Department of Education Personal Identification Numbers (PINs) at www.pin.ed.gov before attending the event.

Students who attend College Goal Sunday and submit a completed evaluation form will automatically be entered into a drawing for an educational prize. Winners will be notified in March; prizes will be sent directly to the higher education institutions selected by the winning students.

Twenty-first Century Scholars are encouraged to attend College Goal Sunday to receive help in completing the FAFSA and other paperwork necessary to receive their scholarships.

Contact the PNC Financial Aid Office at (219) 785-5200, Ext. 5493, or finaid@pnc.edu for more information.

For 12 Tuesday evenings starting April 1, the group will conduct “Introduction to the Art of Clowning” classes. Call (219) 363-4402 to register.

Parades selected for participation are: St. Patrick’s Day, Michigan City, Blossomtime in St. Joseph-Benton Harbor, Mich., July 4 in La Porte and Summerfest in Michigan City. Shows are planned for National Clown Week at Michigan City Public Library and Art in the Park at Washington Park. The troop will participate in a number of Relays for Life in Porter and La Porte counties. Locations and dates will be determined later.

PNC Spring Career Expo

The Purdue University-North Central Office of Career Development will present its fifth Spring Career Expo from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 19, in the Library-Student-Faculty Building, Room 144.

The fair is open to PNC students, alumni and the public, which can network with employers representing industries and organizations, including finance and insurance services, retail, manufacturing, business, management, sales, government and non-profit organizations.

Natalie Connors, PNC director of career development, said employers are seeking applicants with strong problem-solving, analytical thinking, communication and leadership skills. Job seekers are encouraged to research organizations they are interested in and take multiple copies of their resume along with questions. Attendees should be dressed in interview-appropriate attire.

Among the employers are American Sugar Refining Inc., ArcelorMittal USA, Arnett Construction, All Phase Electrical Supply, CEC Controls Company, Dwyer Instruments, Farm Credit Mid America, Geico Insurance Co., Group Dekko and Imagination Station Child Care Development Center.

Further information about the fair, including the list of registered employers, is at www.pnc.edu/careers/office-of-career-development/students/career-expo/

Job seekers are encouraged to pre-register for the event, which can be done online or by calling (219) 785-5451.

Beneath the Abbey Wall by A.D. Scott (oversize paperback, $15 retail in bookstores and online)

It’s still winter — don’t we all know it! — and maybe you’re looking for something to read that’s not too heavy, not too long, but a book that holds your interest.

This week’s recommendation covers all that and more.

I love how books let you travel through time and space without leaving your favorite chair to do so. This week’s book takes us to the Scottish Highlands in 1957. It feels real, this small town where not everyone owns a TV, everyone knows everyone else and who is related to whom, and news is spread by way of a weekly newspaper. It is a simpler time with less hustle and bustle. But prejudices and strict moral codes abound as this tightly drawn mystery reveals.

Our story begins with newspaper editor John McAllister called in the middle of the night to identify a body in the morgue. It turns out to be Joyce Smart, business manager of the local newspaper, The Highland Gazette, run by McAllister. She was a 50-something woman married to Sgt. Maj. Archibald Smart.

Who in the world would want to harm this lady? A shocked McAllister makes it his priority to uncover what happened, especially after his top assistant, Don McLeod, is arrested. The sergeant major fingers McLeod as the murderer and, due to his influence in the community, has him charged with murder. The small newspaper staff is devastated. Joyce Smart was liked by everyone there, including reporters Joanne Ross and Rob McLean, photographer Hector Bain and secretary Betsy Buchanan.

Now short two key staff members, McAllister is torn between conducting his own investigation of Smart’s murder while trying to put out a weekly newspaper. And now, “the game’s afoot!”

All the characters are well defined and represent stratas of 1950s Scottish society. Ross is a separated mother of two young girls. Her husband was abusive, but in this society, she must tread lightly to maintain her reputation. Buchanan is in love with Joanne’s husband, but trying to get a divorce at this time would not be easy. McLean is the son of the local lawyer, young heartthrob to all the girls who come on weekends to hear his new rock ‘n’ roll band play at the local hall.

Then there are the Travelers — what we call gypsies — who come and go. Led by Jenny McPhee, it may turn out that she knows more about the murder than anyone, but she harbors secrets she promised to take to her grave.

McAllister is called to the reading of Joyce Smart’s will, and then the real shock hits the newspaper staff as the extent of her fortune is revealed and more importantly, who got what!

Enter Neil Stewart just in the nick of time. A Canadian, he says he is in the area doing research on his family. He just happens to be a journalist, so McAllister hires him as a temp to fill the gap made by McLeod’s absence. Stewart also happens to be a handsome, friendly guy who Ross is immediately attracted to. Where could this doomed romance go? Not very far, I’m thinking, but his appearance causes more questions, especially when McAllister finds out he visited Joyce Smart just before she was killed.

A different kind of mystery, combined with the lives and mores of mid-20th century Scotland, make this just the kind of winter reading to keep your mind off the snow for awhile.

There are three other books in this series, and a fifth will come out by the end of summer.

_Suspense Magazine_ said: “Scott doles out the clues and keeps it interesting all the way to the end.” Can’t argue with that.

A.D. Scott — a lady, by the way — was born in Scotland, educated at Inverness Royal Academy and the Royal Scottish Academy of Music and Drama. She has worked in the theater, magazines and as a knitwear designer.

Till next time, happy reading!
