In 1968, Jim Wiseman bought a ski area in Southwest Michigan then known as “Little Switzerland.” It had nothing more than a single farmhouse building and seven rope tows. The day before Wiseman was set to open what he renamed “Swiss Valley,” five of those seven rope tows were condemned.

No evidence of such origins remains as I pulled into the closest ski and snowboard site to Chicago and northern Indiana with my wife, Melissa, brother-in-law, Micky, and his girlfriend, Lyndi. We were too busy taking in the modern lifts, runs, terrain parks and buildings, all imbued with the quaint charm of their Swiss-chalet stylings in blue and brown.

Swiss Valley is located in Jones, Mich., which is 35 miles from South Bend and 103 miles from Chicago. It has been owned by the same family for the last 45 years. The family and staff have spent that time dedicated to making the resort the most family friendly ski area around.

“We’ve now got 11 runs, two terrain parks, two quad-chair lifts, a triple lift, a separate beginner’s area and a 225 vertical foot peak,” said Jamie Stafne, Wiseman’s daughter and the park’s marketing director. “We’re really known as a ‘learn to ski’ area. We provide more than 10,000 lessons a year, and you can learn at our park and take those skills with you anywhere.”

Since three-fourths of our group had never skied before, we visited the ski school inside the main lodge to register for a lesson. Speaking with Alex Linn, assistant director of the Swiss Valley ski school, it was immediately apparent that Stafne wasn’t kidding about the area’s focus on teaching. Swiss Valley offers lessons on demand to any level of skier or snowboarder, and their instructors are all Professional Ski Instructors of America certified. Private and group lessons are offered at varying rates, as well as options such as gender-specific instructors in case, for example, a female guest feels more comfortable with a female instructor.

Kids have plenty of options as well, with instructors specifically certified in teaching them how to ski and snowboard. Beyond standard lessons, “our Valley Kids program is a good option for parents who want to ski,” Linn explained. “It’s a package deal that puts four or five kids together in a fun, playground environment for a full or half day under the care of specialized instructors. It incorporates toys and Hula hoops as they learn, and the adults have a few hours to ski on their own knowing their kids are having fun and being taken care of.”

We arranged an hour lesson to learn the basics of going, stopping and turning, and rented some gear before meeting our instructor. Though we came prepared save for boots and skis, part of how Swiss Valley is trying to make snow sports inviting and available is to think of everything for you. While most areas will rent equipment, not all of them offer as much as Swiss Valley does if you’re new to the winter scene.

“We can rent you jackets, goggles and anything else you need,” Stafne said, “but you should bring your own socks.”

While everyone else headed to the separate bunny hill for the lesson, I detoured through the ski patrol building. Statistically, skiing is a lot safer than many sports and activities. According to the National Safety Council, you’re significantly more likely to drown in a public area or fatally crash while riding a bicycle than to die on skis. But the combination of cold weather, speed and unfamiliar activity does have inherent risk. That’s why the National Ski Patrol was organized in 1938.

At Swiss Valley, a volunteer force of nearly 70 patrollers under Jeff McElheny’s direction offers emergency care to the area’s guests. Don’t think that being a volunteer force means they don’t know what they are doing.

“To be a patroller,” McElheny said, “you must pass the NSP’s Outdoor Emergency Care program for extreme conditions and have AED as well as advanced CPR certifications.

“Beyond that, a good number of our patrollers are health-care professionals in their day jobs, though while patrolling they are only authorized to provide certain levels of care. For serious injuries, we’re served by a nearby ambulance service.”

The average Swiss Valley patroller has between 20 and 25 years of experience, and many volunteer at bike races, marathons and other events all year long.

“Advances in technology have made skiing a lot safer, too,” McElheny said. “Better materials and bindings mean fewer lower-extremity injuries.”

He knocks on wood while stressing that nothing unfortunate with skiers has taken place yet this season.

By then, my family had finished their lesson and in just an hour learned how to safely descend the hill. The skiing itself was great. The trails are pretty much straight shots interrupted by copses near the bottom, but the paths among the trees were closed when we were there. The layout lends itself to an area focused on learning since the runs don’t wind much; however, that’s common for this area since we don’t have anything like the mountains out west. Regardless, the speed was exhilarating as we raced down the intermediate runs. Even on a busy holiday, the hills at Swiss Valley are broad enough that you never feel crowded by fellow skiers or snowboarders. The four of us never had to wait long in line for the lifts and within a short time we were at the top once more, looking out over the icy fences at the incredible elevated view of the frozen Michigan countryside.

Later, while taking a break, we warmed up with some hot chocolate in the café, which offers the usual fare alongside healthier options such as wraps and salads. The park’s complex of buildings also includes a lower lodge with a restaurant and a full bar (I’m told their hot spiced wine is popular, and that during the weekend there’s live music) as well as the ski shop. A large, round fireplace is kept burning in this chalet for skiers to warm their fingers and toes away from the elements while affording a beautiful view of the hills through nearby windows.

With feeling returned to our faces — it was quite cold that day — and being ready to get some more runs in, we took to the tallest hill this time to push our skills. We didn’t dare venture into the terrain parks, but I did stop to speak with a man who was out shaping the snow in front of a rail: Mark Osborne, who builds and maintains the terrain parks for Swiss Valley.

“We’ve got a starter park and a main one,” Osborne said, “and they’ve got rails, boxes and a tabletop jump. We reposition them each year so it doesn’t get stale.”

Even just standing there on the hill talking, Osborne’s involvement was noteworthy. Not only is it unusual for a park to have a full-time person on-hand in the terrain park to catch issues before they form, but a number of young skiers stopped by to ask advice or get feedback on their efforts.

While Swiss Valley has intentionally positioned itself as one of the best places beginners can go to learn to ski, don’t think that it’s just for novices. The park has its own traveling junior race team and hosts events such as the upcoming Outpost Cup, an open ski and snowboard race on Feb. 24. In fact, as I spoke with Osborne, he called over a young skier, Swiss Valley’s own Olympic hopeful, Zach Surdell. Osborne was Surdell’s first coach and spotted his talent at Swiss Valley, where Surdell learned to ski. Since then, the 15-year-old has become a freestyle aerial skier with the U.S. Olympic development team and competes internationally as part of the exclusive national team. Some of the tricks he’s working on require 50 to 60 feet of air, which he practices over water for now for safety. But once he turns 17, he’ll be able to qualify them on snow and use them in competition. Look for him in the 2018 or 2022 games.

“A few Olympic skiers have come out of Swiss Valley,” Osborne said, adding that interested skiers can contact him through the park to find out more about training opportunities.

With the sun soon to set, we returned our gear and made for home, tired from the day’s activities but deeply satisfied with a day spent together doing something new and active. The snow was in good shape for us, well-groomed and free of icy chunks. Already, this season is off to a better start than last year. As “Coop,” a staffer in charge of a number of the park’s operations, told me, so far it’s looking like it will be a great year.

“We were able to open two weeks earlier than last year, and conditions have been great for us to make snow, too,” he said.

So with the start of the new year, why not resolve to make the short trip up and try something new with friends and family? Swiss Valley is not only the closest, but one of the best places to learn if you’ve never skied or snowboarded before, and has plenty to offer more experienced athletes as well. Visit skiswissvalley.com for information on rates, hours and snow conditions. See you on the slopes!
La Porte Service League will present a children’s musical to area students and the public as it opens the 80th annual production Sunday, Jan. 26.

Sheryl Edwards, who has been directing and acting in the league’s annual children’s plays for 27 years, is the director.

The play is an adaptation of the classic orchestral suite by Russian composer Sergei Prokofiev. The symphonic selection was created with narration to introduce audiences to the various instruments that make up an orchestra.

All aspects of the production, such as directing, acting, set construction, costuming, publicity, ushering, prop selection and music direction, are performed by La Porte Service League members.

Actresses playing humans, animals and inanimate objects to life include: Debbie Ault — Peter; Frog/Narrator — Kris Cook; Cat — Lana Cook; Bird — Lisa Denger; Lady Hunter — Marianne DePersio; Wolf — Joanne Gorecki; Hunters — Beth LeRoy, Beth Mann and Sandra Olson; Poppy/Grandfather — Mary Ellen McCain; Baba/Grandmother — Annette Williams; Duck — Claudia Winter.

The stage crew includes Ramona Komasinski (production manager), Marsha Barr, Connie Kuzydym and Carol Holcomb.

The play will be presented to La Porte County school children at 9:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, Jan. 27, 28 and 30, in the La Porte High School auditorium. One performance will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 29, while Friday, Jan. 31, is an alternate day in case of inclement weather.

The general public may attend any of the performances, as well as at 1 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 26, or 9:30 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 1. The suggested donation is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

In addition to grade schools, preschool classes and home-schooled students, groups of younger children are welcome. Educational packets that follow state standards are put together by Jan Yandt, a La Porte Community Schools teacher and La Porte Service League member.

Groups interested in reserving a time to attend the production may contact Claudia Winter at (219) 778-4478. Sponsorship opportunities are available for some performance dates.

The Purdue University-North Central Honors Program will present “The Origins and Evolution of Ska — from Jamaica, to England, to the U.S. and the Rest of the World” from noon to 1 p.m. Monday, Jan. 27, in Library-Science-Faculty Building Assembly Hall, Room 02.

The lecture by Chesterton-based music journalist Heather Augustyn is free and open to the public.

The musical genre of ska began in Jamaica in the 1950s, then traveled to England before reaching the U.S. in the 1980s. Augustyn’s work traces this international flow of cultural materials alongside the political, social and historical circumstances that made it possible.

Augustyn has been an invited lecturer at the International Reggae Conference and hosted music programming on Chicago’s National Public Radio station. Her work is accessible to a broad audience and includes a blog exploring the cultural history of ska (skabook.com/foundationska/).

Evening of Dueling Pianos

As a fundraiser for Southwest Michigan Symphony Orchestra, an evening of dueling pianos is at 7 p.m. EST Friday, Jan. 31, at The Vineland Center, 1155 Vineland Road, St. Joseph, Mich.

A typical dueling pianos show features two piano players taking audience-requested songs. Generally, tips are expected when a song request is made, and priority may be given to a song with a larger denomination bill. After receiving the tip, the players will often perform a fight song of whatever college song is requested, often resulting in bidding wars between alumni and students of various universities present. Patrons also can request an audience member be brought on stage. Generally, this is to celebrate a birthday, bachelorette party, bachelor party, anniversary or other occasion. The player then performs a “calldown” in which the participant (or participants) are embarrassed in a light-hearted fashion.

The event begins with an optional buffet dinner at 5:30 p.m. EST. The cost is $15 and must be purchased in advance. For those not attending dinner, doors open at 6:30 p.m. EST, followed by Dueling Pianos at 7 p.m. The cost is $30 just for the show, or $45 for dinner and the show. Several local merchant gift certificates will be available for a silent auction.

All proceeds directly benefit SMSO programming and educational support.

Contact the symphony office at (269) 982-4030 or visit www.smso.org for more information or tickets.

Indoor Flea Market

From local food products and plants to tools and antiques, the indoor flea market returns on Saturday, Jan. 25, at the New Troy (Mich.) Community Center, 13372 California Road.

Continuing the last two Saturdays through March, the flea markets also include books, jewelry, photography, crafts, furniture and other housewares. The community center’s two new stores — a bookstore and furniture store — will be open during the flea markets.

Visitors also can place orders for heirloom seed collections. Six different collections are available at $10 per collection. Each collection contains four packets of seeds.

Vendor spaces are available at $10 per space, which includes a table and chair. Contact Janna at (773) 275-1514, Del at (269) 985-3087 or info@centeroftheworld.net to reserve a space. The center will be open for dealer setup from 6 to 7 p.m. EST Friday and at 8 a.m. EST Saturday. Proceeds from space rentals benefit the center, an all-volunteer facility run by the non-profit organization Friends of New Troy.

Doors will be open to the public from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. EST Saturdays. Admission is free and a home-cooked lunch will be available for purchase.

“Discovering the Forest” Exhibit

South Shore Arts will present “Discovering the Forest: Paintings by Robert Johnson” on Jan. 24 through March 15 at the Crown Point branch, 123 N. Main St.

On display are 30 works from a series that began with Johnson’s daily walks in the forest near his home in Palos Heights, Ill.

He received his bachelor of art education from The Art Institute of Chicago in 1955 and his master of science in art education from the Illinois Institute of Technology in 1967. He was a professor with The School of the Art Institute and for Chicago public schools. He was director of the Bureau of Art for the Chicago Public Schools from 1987 until his retirement in 1992.

Regular exhibit viewing hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Visit www.southshoreartsonline.org for more information.

Children’s Programs Continue

Westchester Public Library will continue several popular children’s programs this winter.

The programs are for different ages and held at different times to meet the needs of families with young children. They are held at Thomas Library, 200 W. Indiana Ave., Chesterton, and Hageman Library, 100 Francis St, Porter.

“Play Date” offers unstructured playtime for babies newborn to 12 months old — siblings are welcome — and their parent or caregiver at 10:30 a.m. Tuesdays at Hageman Library.

“Tickle Tales” is a hands-on introduction to books and the library for children 9 months old to 2 years old and their parent or caregiver. It is held at 10 a.m. Tuesdays at Hageman Library and 10 and 11 a.m. Wednesdays at Thomas Library. Space is limited, so pre-registration is required. Parents must register at the branch where their children will attend.

“Toddler Time,” an informal introduction to books and the library, offers storytime for children 2 to 3 and their parent or caregiver at 10 a.m. Mondays at Hageman Library.

“Wiggles & Giggles” offers storytime for children 2 to 3 and their parent or caregiver at Thomas Library at 10 a.m. Thursday and Friday. Interaction between caretaker and child includes book sharing and singing with Grandma Frankie.

“Preschool Storytime” is for children 4 to 6 and not yet in kindergarten at 3 p.m. Wednesdays at Hageman Library. Programs last about 45 minutes and are available on a drop-in basis.

“Stepping Stone 3’s” offers storytime for 3-year-olds independent of their parent, but not ready for a longer storytime. It is held at 10 a.m. Wednesdays at Hageman Library.

“Stories and Kicks for 4, 5 & 6” is held at 10 a.m. Tuesdays at Thomas Library for children 4 to 6 who can join Miss Pat for stories, songs, pretending, dancing and crafts.

Call Thomas Library at (219) 926-7696 or Hageman Library at (219) 926-9080 for more information.

Lubeznik Center to Show Film

As part of its “Citizen * Soldier * Citizen” exhibit, a free showing of Zach Skiles’ “On Killing” is at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 30, at the Lubeznik Center for the Arts, 101 W. Second St., Michigan City.

“On Killing” is a documentary on combat veterans of Iraq and Afghanistan by and based on Lt. Col. Dave Grossman’s book, “On Killing: The Psychological Cost of Learning to Kill in War and Society.” It follows one Marine who invaded Iraq in 2003, and features combat veterans of Iraq and Afghanistan who give personal insights to their own experiences in training, combat and the aftermath.

Contact the center at (219) 874-4900 or visit www.lubeznikcenter.org for more information. “Citizen * Soldier * Citizen” continues through Feb. 9 in the Hyndman Gallery.

Pianist Lecture-Recital

Pianist Rika Uchida will explain and perform the music of Claude Debussy in the lecture-recital, “Music of Claude Debussy: From Romantic to Modern Sound,” at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 22, at Valparaiso University’s Duesenberg Recital Hall.

Uchida will explain the historical background and various musical aspects of the pieces she performs, including “Clair de Lune.”

Uchida received a master’s degree in music theory and a doctor of musical arts in piano performance from the University of Oregon. She is associate professor of piano at Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa. She specializes in turn-of-the-century music, particularly Debussy’s solo piano works.

Admission to the lecture-recital is free and open to the public. Visit www.valpo.edu/music for more information.

Parent Network Informational Meeting

The Michigan City High School Parent Network will host an informational meeting for middle- and high-school parents on Dual Credit and Advanced Placement classes at 6 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 22, in MCHS’ auditorium, 8466 W. Pahs Road.

Representatives from the MCHS guidance department and Purdue University-North Central will explain Dual Credit, AP and honors classes and outline the steps involved in earning credits.

Last year, Michigan City High School led the Duneland conference in Dual Credits awarded to high school students through PNC. In some cases, MCHS students earned more than a year’s worth of college credit prior to high school graduation, at little or no cost to families.

Any public, private or home-school parent wishing to learn more about this opportunity is invited to the meeting.

Indiana Home Inspectors Course

The Purdue University-North Central Office of Graduate and Extended Learning will offer a non-credit pre-licensing course as preparation for the Indiana Home Inspector Examination.

“Pre-licensing for Indiana Home Inspectors” meets from 6 to 9 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays starting Feb. 11. The $1,350 registration fee includes all required textbooks and course materials. Payment plans are available. The registration and final payment deadline is 4 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 28.

During the state-approved program, students learn through intensive classroom instruction and hands-on labs by performing live home inspections with the instructor. The course is designed to meet the guidelines for providing home inspection services in Indiana and is a requirement to apply for a Home Inspectors License here.

Taught by a licensed Indiana home inspector with more than 20 years of experience and nearly a decade of teaching, students learn the intricacies of building structures and systems, as well as the investigative techniques needed to complete home and business inspections. Students receive in-depth instruction on state law, report writing and marketing their own future home inspection business.

A Tribute to the Original Host
by Andrew Tallackson

As a journalist, many people cross your path. Some fade from memory. Others leave indelible impressions.

Richard Fammeree, without question, made the most memorable entrance into my life. It was about 12 years ago. I was seated at a circular table, awaiting his arrival for an interview. We were to discuss Michigan City Public Library’s new open-mic venue. I had no clue what he looked like. The meeting was arranged by phone.

Arriving on time, Richard barreled through the front doors of the building. Standing more than 6 feet tall, he sported a crazy concoction of hair, blood-red poncho, Khaki shorts and sandals. With arms spread wide, as if awaiting a hug, he looked right at me and shouted, “Brother.”

I turned around in my chair, confused, looking to see if he was speaking to someone else.

“No, you,” he said. “Get over here.”

I hesitantly slid out of my chair and inched toward him. He grabbed me with a big bear hug, lifted me off the ground, then exclaimed, “The sun is shining, the air is clean. Let’s talk.”

As Richard plopped down into a chair, gesturing for me to join him, my only thought was, “Wow, the ’60s were really good to this guy.”

Strangely enough, the ensuing interview was fairly even-keeled. A native of Oak Park, Ill., he described himself as a troubadour who roamed the globe to spread a love of poetry and music. He invited me to attend an open-mic session.

My wife and I did make it to the next program. Some of it was silly. Some of it was weird. Some of it was exhilarating. Some of it was deeply moving. During the bizarre moments, Richard told everyone to relax. Many people, he said, view art as pretentious and alienating. Art in its truest form, he continued, can be freeing and exhilarating. It can be silly and embarrassing. Most importantly, it’s about being comfortable with expressing yourself.

It was then I got it. I got Richard Fammeree. He loved life. He had a kind heart. He understood joy, the peace in knowing he was doing what he loved. So it came as a shock when I learned of the Mighty Mic program being resurrected as a tribute to “the late” Richard Fammeree. I was unaware he passed away. A quick online search revealed he died in 2011 after a year-long battle with ALS, or more commonly known as Lou Gehrig’s disease.

Michigan City Public Library deserves a pat on the back for its efforts. In its heyday, Mighty Mic gave many people a voice, a forum to express themselves that otherwise might not have been possible.

To Richard, I never got the chance to tell you this, but, brother, you made me smile. You are missed, but not forgotten.
February Jewelry Classes

Mara Wible will teach a variety of Tuesday night jewelry classes in February at Chesterton Art Center, 115 S. Fourth St.

On Feb. 4, Wible will offer a Lacy Woven Bracelet class where students use seed beads and monofilament to create a delicate bracelet. The Chainmaille Earrings Class on Feb. 11 will have students create up to three different pairs of earrings.

During Netted Rings on Feb. 18, participants make easy ring patterns in any color. On Feb. 25, Wible will teach a Wavy Beaded Necklace or Bracelet Class. Participants will have a choice of which accessory to create.

All classes are at 5:15 and 7 p.m. The cost is $25 for members and $30 for non-members, with all supplies included. Call (219) 926-4711 to register. Visit www.chestertonart.com for more information.

The Box Factory for the Arts, 1101 Broad St., St. Joseph, Mich., has announced the winning entries in its “SHOOT” photography competition.

There were 99 photographers entering work in five categories and 189 photographs submitted. Entries were judged by Marc Ullom, a professional photographer and Andrews University instructor.

Prizes of $200 each were awarded for the best in each category. Those winning the top prize were:
- David Cory, South Bend, for “Nebula 2” (abstract).
- Bob Conrad, St. Joseph, for “Finally, a Rest Stop” (animals).
- Tom Tackett, Stevensville, Mich., for “Maiposa Grove” (scenic).
- Todd Comeau, South Haven, Mich., for “Magnificent Mile, Portrait of Chicago Homeless” (people).
- Gary Cook, Stevensville, for “Oil Cans” (still life).

Honorable mentions went to:
- Brandon Bailey, Niles, Mich., for “Mackinac Lights” (scenic).
- Kelly Wantuck, South Bend, for “Reflection Italy” (abstract),
- Butch Welch, St. Joseph, for “Green Apple” (still life).

All works are on display through March 1. Most of the photographs are priced for sale. Visit www.boxfactoryforthearts.org for more information.

Michigan City Public Library

The following programs are through Michigan City Public Library, 100 E. Fourth St.:

- Basket weaving at 9:15 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 25.

  Margie Warner teaches the class where participants take home a basket. A $10 non-refundable deposit is required for materials, and prices vary. The basket can be viewed at the library circulation desk.

  Elvis Presley would celebrate his 79th birthday this month if he was alive today. As such, the library will show the concert film “That’s the Way It Is.” Released in 1970 and re-edited in 2001, it follows Elvis as he prepares for his live stage show and the actual performance. Refreshments will be served, and the DVD will be raffled off to an audience member. The program originally was scheduled for Jan. 5, but was postponed due to inclement weather.

  Call Robin Kohn at (219) 873-3049 for more information.

New Customers only schedule with Stylists Kimberly or Sarah for a cut & color for only $60. Schedule with Sarah for a cut, color and manicure for only $70.

• 2 p.m. — “Critter Feeding Time.”
  Stop by the Nature Center Auditorium to help feed snakes, turtles and frogs.

Sunday, Jan. 26
10 a.m. — “Feed the Birds.”
  Join a naturalist outside the Nature Center for the daily feeding. Get close views of chickadees, cardinals and woodpeckers.
• 2 p.m. — Winter Craft Hour.
  Meet at the Nature Center Auditorium for winter- and nature-themed crafts.

Indiana Dunes State Park is at 1600 N. County Road 25 East (the north end of Indiana 49), Chesterton. Call (219) 926-1390 for more information.

New Chamber Members, Officers

Michigan City Area Chamber of Commerce has announced its 2014 board members and officers.

Steve Kring (Horizon Bank) was appointed chairman, Scott Mundell (Franciscan St. Anthony Health) as chair elect, William Kaminski (Newby, Lewis, Kaminsky & Jones) as secretary and Paul Applegate (Applegate Co. CPA) as treasurer.

New board members are: Kevin Mazur (Crowe Horwath LLC) and Cynthia Roberts (Purdue University-North Central).

Other board members include: Tom Cipares, past chair (General Insurance Services Inc.); Sara Ellis (Blue Chip Casino); Tim Haas, Haas & Associates; Bill Hackney (The News-Dispatch); Clarence Hulse (Michigan City Economic Development Corp.); Angela Nelson (NIPSCO); Fred McNulty (HR Dimensions); Maureen Mellen (Lighthouse Place-Premium Outlets); and Georgeann Quealy (Integrative Flavors Inc.).

Ex-officio directors are Mayor Ron Meer (City of Michigan City) and Barbara Eason-Watkins (Michigan City Area Schools).

Art Instruction Scholarships

The Michigan City Public Art Committee, created in 2011 by the Michigan City Common Council, has established a scholarship fund to assist Michigan City children in taking art instruction.

Visual art classes or individual art instruction for qualified children between 5 and 18 will be funded. More than $2,000 in scholarships are still available. The maximum grant request per individual is $200. Funds will be available for instruction in painting, drawing, printmaking, sculpture, ceramics, collage, crafts, such as beading, mosaic work and weaving, art camps or any combination of these taught by a legitimate instructor. The committee will not fund music, writing, dance or drama instruction.

Applicants must show financial need and take instruction from an art provider in Michigan City’s city limits. The application deadline is at least 30 days before the instruction is scheduled to start.

Applications are available at the La Porte County Convention & Visitors Bureau in Marquette Mall. Submission can be made to Jane Daley at the bureau, or contact her by email at jane@michigancitylaporte.com and the application will be sent electronically.

Critique Night at CAC

Mark VanderVinne explains the concepts of a successful piece of art.

Local painter Mark VanderVinne will host Critique Night at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 5, at Chesterton Art Center, 115 S. Fourth St.

Guests are welcome, with no prior registration required. All ability levels and artistic styles are encouraged to attend. While VanderVinne is a painter, he can advise artists in other mediums.

Guests may sit and listen; however, participation is encouraged. Artists can bring in a piece of work at any stage, from conception to the final version. While it will be a safe and friendly environment, it will be a critique involving VanderVinne and others providing advice and insight into the effectiveness of the work or artistic concept.

Critique Night is held the first Wednesday of each month. Call the center at (219) 926-4711 or visit www.chestertonart.com for more information.

Opening Reception for New Exhibits

Krasl Art Center, 707 Lake Blvd., St. Joseph, Mich., will have an opening reception for two new exhibits at 6 p.m. EST Friday, Jan. 31.

After visiting a San Antonio Art Museum exhibit, the Kelleys embarked on a lifelong journey to collect African-American artwork. Neither are trained in the arts. However, the Kelleys vowed to educate themselves about their African-American heritage through the fine arts. Today, David Driskell, professor emeritus at the University of Maryland at College Park, calls the Kelley collection “one of the finest that has been assembled tracing the history of African American art.” Works span from the 19th to 21st centuries.

The exhibit is organized by Landau Traveling Exhibitions of Los Angeles.

In the artlab, works by artist Heather Parrish are influenced by contemporary artists James Turrell and Olafur Eliasson. She lives in South Bend and is enrolled in The University of Notre Dame’s master of fine arts program.

During the opening reception, the Hull School Drummers perform at 6:30 p.m. EST, followed by a Coastline Children’s Film Festival premiere screening of “Kirikou & the Sorceress” at 7:15 p.m. EST.

Both exhibits run through April 20.

Michiana Clowns

Michiana Clowns held its installation of officers Jan. 4 at Strongbow Inn, Valparaiso, with an appreciation dinner for clowns who represented the alley during the year.

Terri Sherwood-Awald served as installing officer, relieving the outgoing officers — President Lonna Temkin, Vice President Beccy Seymour, Treasurer Darla Henandez and Acting Secretary Lynette McDonald — of their duties. The new officers serving for two years are: President — Seymour; Vice President — McDonald; Treasurer — Pat Bowers; and Secretary — Jenifer Moler.

Temkin distributed to each family in attendance a handbound booklet of “Wise Sayings” she compiled with the aid of Earl Temkin as a token of her appreciation. Michiana Clowns then presented a multicolored, handcrafted photo blanket in recognition of her service as president for the past five years.

Lonna Temkin also read thank-you letters from various area charities and non-profit services in appreciation for donations from the Michiana Clowns alley during the holiday season.

Snowman Building Competition

Taltree Arboretum & Gardens is hosting a snowman building competition through March 2.

To participate, entries must be built at Taltree, which is at 450 W. County Road 100N near Valparaiso. Participants should take a picture and submit their entry by email to info@taltree.org with the following information: name, phone, snowman title, date built and Taltree location description. All submissions must be received by March 3 to qualify.

On March 5, all entries will be posted to Taltree’s facebook fan page – facebook.com/Taltree – for people to vote for their favorite snowmen. Facebook fans will have 48 hours to vote. The entry with the most “Likes” will win a one-year family membership.

The winner will be announced Friday, March 7.

In winter, the arboretum is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. Member entry is free. Non-member entry is $10 per vehicle for up to five people. Visit Taltree.org or call (219) 462-0025 for more information.

Ice Sculpture Demonstrations

Art is coming in downtown La Porte in the form of ice sculptures to help launch WinterFest, the City of La Porte Park Department’s winter activities.

From 3 to 6 p.m. Friday, Jan. 24, people can see the ice sculptures being made by the artists. Demonstrations are planned throughout downtown La Porte in front of shops on Lincolnway, State Street and Jefferson Avenue. Local shops hosting ice sculptures include Roxy Music, Thaddeus C. Gallery, Engstrom Jeweler, Cookery Tried and True Cafe, Zelden’s Shoe Store, Magic Sports, Goose Feathers Gifts, Rocco’s Gallery, Mucho Mas, As Time Goes By, B&J’s American Cafe, Suds on State, Kessler Lofts and the Vintage Rose.

Other events that weekend include fitness activities, carriage rides and an ice fishing derby.

Visit www.cityoflaporte.com or call (219) 326-9600 for more information on WinterFest.

Origami Folding Class

Leslie Cefali will offer a three-week Origami Folding Class starting from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 5, at Chesterton Art Center, 115 S. Fourth St.

Students learn about the ancient art of Japanese paper folding. In addition to folding traditional squares, participants explore folding money, business cards and travel brochures.

The cost is $35 for members and $40 for non-members. Most materials will be included. Call (219) 926-4711 to register. Visit www.chestertonart.com for more information.

Mc Cormick’s Creek State Park Trip

A special charter bus trip will head from Indiana Dunes State Park to McCormick’s Creek State Park from Feb. 28 to March 2, with the trip including a two-night stay in the park’s Canyon Inn.

The tour will offer a chance to see live birds of prey up close, McCormick’s Creek’s ice-covered canyons and the Marsh Madness Festival at nearby Goose Pond Fish & Wildlife Area. Participants will see thousands of migrating cranes, geese and other waterfowl there.

The cost is $339 per person, double occupancy. The single-person cost is $399. Included in the fees are two-nights lodging, all meals except Sunday lunch, special interpretive programming, park entrance fees and trail guiding.

Space is limited, and advance registration is required. Contact the Indiana Dunes State Park Nature Center at (219) 926-1390 for more information. Visit visitIndianaInns.com and click on Canyon Inn (group code 0228DT) or call (877) LODGES1 to register.

2014 Earth Day exhibitors Sought

The Recycling and Waste Reduction District of Porter County is accepting online registrations for exhibitors to participate in the 2014 Northwest Indiana Earth Day Celebration on April 19.

Exhibitors sought include organizations and businesses that can provide environmental awareness, services and products to attendees. They can register at www.ItMeansTheWorld.org. Held in three buildings at the Porter County Expo Center, 215 Division Road, Valparaiso, the event attracted more than 3,200 attendees in 2013, the largest attendance in its eight-year history.

Exhibitors can set up on Thursday, April 17. They also have the options of expanding their booths, connecting to electricity and advertising themselves on the bingo card given to all attendees.

Call (219) 465-3819 for more information.

Michigan City Mainstreet Association

The Michigan City Mainstreet Association will host its annual meeting at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 29, at the Lubeznik Center for the Arts, 101 W. Second St., Michigan City.

Speakers will review 2013 and present the 2014 vision and new board of directors.

Members and non-members are welcome. The fee, which is $12 for members and $15 for non-members, includes lunch. Advance reservations are required by emailing michigancitymainstreet@hotmail.com.

Downtown on National Register

Michigan City received notice the Franklin Street Downtown District was officially listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

The Redevelopment Commission, working with Councilman Richard Murphy and consultant Kurt Garner, applied for the nomination.

The Elston Grove Historic District was listed in November. The Haskell-Barker District/Washington Street District is scheduled to be listed later this year.

Listing on the National Register, according to a press release, offers significant financial incentives for downtown redevelopment, including a 20 percent investment tax credit for historic renovation, a credit important in light of the Uptown Artists Loft Project in the Warren Building being developed by Artspace.

Catherine Reed Exhibit

The Purdue University-North Central Odyssey Arts and Cultural Events Series is presenting the exhibit “Explosion of Color” by Catherine Reed.

Born in southern Indiana, Reed earned bachelor’s and master’s degrees from Indiana University. For the past 23 years, she has worked in management for two Fortune Five energy companies in marketing, sales and consulting.

Her art features mixed media on canvas. Art has always been her passion, according to a press release, but she put that on hold for years. After a sequence of unexplainable events, a chance meeting with an independent art professional and encouragement from a well-known Southern artist, she renewed her interest in painting.

She has exhibited at shows and galleries in Louisville, Ky., and in Atlanta. She and her husband live in Shelby County, Ky.

Most of her pieces at PNC are for sale. The free exhibit runs through May 9 in the first floor north study area of the PNC Technology Building. Building hours are 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday through Friday, 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday during the school semester; otherwise, the building is closed Sunday.

Maple Syrup Tapping Workshop

Learn how to make maple syrup at 1 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 8, at Deep River County Park, 9410 Old Lincoln Highway, Hobart, Ind.

Anyone with access to large maple trees can use a few supplies and a little instruction to make pure maple syrup at home.

Through the program, learn how and when to tap the trees, how to collect and preserve the sap and what it takes to produce the syrup. Participants may already have a drill, buckets, camp stove or gas grill, bottles and pans. Other items, such as spiles, filters and sap buckets, may be purchased at the workshop.

The fee is $5 per family and is payable in advance. Register by calling (219) 769-7275. Visit www.lake-countyparks.com for more information.

The Yellow Eyes of Crocodiles by Katherine Pancol (oversize paperback $16 retail)

I read this book alternating laughter with tears, sadness with pure joy and the complete love of life this story instills in readers.

Gushing?
You bet.

It doesn’t take many pages to realize this is a special story, indeed. From the 12th century to modern-day Paris and the wilds of Kenya, we get to know a most unusual family.

Josephine Cortez and Iris Dupin are sisters and as different as night and day. Josephine is a 12th century researcher: quiet, reserved and, she admits to the mirror, having let herself go. She’s packed on a few pounds, doesn’t care about the clothes she wears or the lack of makeup on her face.

Iris, on the other hand, is the gorgeous, self-assured woman with perfect hair, clothes and makeup. Ever since she was a teen, men and women turned to admire her timeless beauty. And, she knew it...

Then, there is the sisters’ mother, Henriette, currently married to Marcel, the rags-to-riches manufacturer who lets his wife rule the roost. What a mistake he’s soon to find out. Henriette makes it no secret she adores Iris and looks down on Josephine with disdain.

Iris is married to Philippe, a successful and very rich corporate lawyer. “He was successful and couldn’t understand why everyone else wasn’t as well.” So, basically, Iris is the trophy wife. She provided Philippe with a son and spent her days having drinks with friends and shopping. As Iris likes to say, “Doing nothing is an art.”

Josephine is married to Antoine, an out-of-work executive for about a year now. They have two daughters: teenage Hortense, who has the beauty and self-assuredness of her aunt Iris, and younger daughter Zoe. They live just outside Paris in Courbovoie.

Feeling sorry for himself, Antoine soon takes up with a mistress, Mylene Corbier, a hairdresser. To make matters worse, now he’s taking off with her to manage a crocodile farm in Kenya. What’s a mother to do? Now, Josephine must find a way to provide money for her and the girls.

One night at a party Philippe and Iris attend, Iris finds herself across the table from a prominent publisher. She decides to impress him by telling him she was going to write a book. Say what? Iris could only spell Givenchy. When pressed for a subject, she can only think of her sister and blurts out that it would be about the 12th century. Now, the guy wants to see a manuscript in six months. Time to talk to dear sister Jo.

Iris pleads with Jo to write her a book that she would have published in her name, but all the money would go to Jo. Given her current situation, it’s a sweet deal. Fighting her conscience, it turns out to be a short fight when Jo discovers the deal is worth $50,000 euros. Can Jo keep her secret, especially when the book hits the best-seller list?

There is lots more fun to come in this delightful story of family, deception, love and crocodiles.

The book includes a reader’s guide that features a conversation with the author and possible questions for book club members to discuss.

About The Yellow Eyes of Crocodiles, author Elizabeth Buchan said: “There is a gorgeous and invigorating zip and sparkle to the writing. You read it with a big smile.”

And, yes, I did.

Pancol is one of France’s best-known authors, with books translated into 31 languages. The Yellow Eyes of Crocodiles won the Prix de Maison de la Presse for Best Novel of the Year when it was published in France in 2006.

Till next time, happy reading!
