A Good Steward

by Connie Kuzydym

“Use what talents you possess; the woods would be very silent if no birds sang there except those that sang best.”

Henry Van Dyke

Being a good steward to the environment comes second nature to lifelong LaPorte County resident Sacha Gee-Burns.

That passion was instilled at an early age, when she learned the importance of hard work and taking care of the earth. Her family’s chrysanthemum farm at one point was the state’s largest grower, yielding 5,000 chrysanthemums. Suffering from hay fever, the pollen from the mums was a struggle, but the farm over time made the transition to perennials, shrubs and, eventually, organic heirloom vegetables.

These days, Sacha is LaPorte County Solid Waste District’s public outreach coordinator and environmental educator. In this role, she creates events and classes for the public — adults and children — to encourage recycling, composting and correctly disposing of household hazardous waste.

With Earth Day right around the corner, The Beacher spoke with her about everything from the LPCSWD and recycling to Sunkissed Organics, the business she started about 15 years ago. Her enthusiasm is contagious, making you want to up your part with recycling. Her desire to get LaPorte County residents, businesses and non-profits to do more with recycling is genuine, offering help to those wishing to begin or expand their efforts.

Sacha’s overall vision for LaPorte County is to increase the number of residents who recycle. Currently, half to three fourths participate in curbside recycling.

“My main goal is to see as close to total county participation as possible,” Sacha

Sacha said, “It would be nice for people to want to recycle to begin with…I would like for people to call me that there’s no recycling bin, for example at the beach, for them to recycle.”

Sacha’s commitment to recycling is an extension of a lifelong curiosity, to investigate ways she can be a better steward to the environment.

She attended college for landscape architecture, but decided she enjoyed being outdoors. In 2000, she went through the Master Gardeners program.

“I learned a lot from other master gardeners and doing events,” she said. “It was pretty neat stuff.”

When she opened Sunkissed Organics, she researched the types of heirloom vegetables to grow and settled on varieties from the 1950s and earlier. She began growing 75 varieties of heirloom tomatoes and a wide assortment of other vegetables.

One day at a farmer’s market, she saw heritage livestock, and another passion took hold. She expanded the operation to include these rare breeds. Her heritage livestock at one time included black guineas. Today, she has a wide variety of poultry and rabbits. Her goats, which she sells every spring, are considered critically endangered.

According to Sacha, rare breeds are the ones all the main breeding stock come from these days. They fell out of popularity for various reasons, one being there was not as much money to be made on them.

By choosing to raise heirloom and heritage varieties, she is ensuring if something were to happen, like the potato blight in Ireland, our food source will not come to an end.

“So many people monoculture — grow all one type of corn, one type of bean,” Sacha said. “If something were to actually happen to that type, that variety was hit, that’s our whole food source that’s gone. Especially if people are growing massive fields of it,” she said. “When people are able to grow these heritage and heirloom variety of different things, whether it be animals, vegetables or fruit, then you have an extra DNA basically that could be adapted and overcome the different stuff (diseases).”

At its height, Sunkissed Organics appeared at numerous farmers markets in Illinois and Indiana. At one point, she was appearing weekly at seven markets in five days. It was a strenuous schedule, beginning at sunup and ending when the bounty was picked for the next day.

Sitting on 8 1/2 acres, Sacha, with help from her two children, takes care of the farm in the mornings, after work and on the weekends. Surprisingly, she is not a big weeder. She does mow the aisles and pulls the big stuff; otherwise, she weeds until July, then lets it go.

“I used to think it had to be pristine out there,” Sacha said. “It turns out with tomatoes...if they get as tall as weeds, the frost hits the weeds first, then you will get two more weeks of tomatoes.”

At its height, Sunkissed Organics appeared at numerous farmers markets in Illinois and Indiana. At one point, she was appearing weekly at seven markets in five days. It was a strenuous schedule, beginning at sunup and ending when the bounty was picked for the next day.

Sitting on 8 1/2 acres, Sacha, with help from her two children, takes care of the farm in the mornings, after work and on the weekends. Surprisingly, she is not a big weeder. She does mow the aisles and pulls the big stuff; otherwise, she weeds until July, then lets it go.

“I used to think it had to be pristine out there,” Sacha said. “It turns out with tomatoes...if they get as tall as weeds, the frost hits the weeds first, then you will get two more weeks of tomatoes.”

Sacha takes the French intensive gardening approach. Her aisles are approximately 4 feet wide, and she alternates her planting in these aisles. When there are no plants in the aisle, she piles manure from the barn there. By flipping back and forth, it balances out the soil. By continuing to work with the soil, less weeds appear over time.

Sacha has not totally backed off of Sunkissed
Organics. Last summer, she had an honor system stand outside her home. Due to the volume of plantings she still does, she also donates many of her vegetables.

It was a year ago that Sacha took on her new post with the LPCSWD. The district formed in 1991 to comply with or exceed Indiana’s goal of reducing materials entering the waste stream. A 20-year plan was developed to reduce the amount of solid waste incinerated or disposed of in landfills.

“Basically, what I’m doing is to divert as much waste from going to the landfills as possible,” Sacha said.

Indeed, Sacha radiates positive energy and new ideas. She is optimistic and leads by example.

Having recycled her entire life, Sacha is perplexed as to why everyone is not recycling through the residential curbside program.

“I feel that we have one of the best recycling programs in the state,” Sacha said. “We were the first one in the state to go curbside and to do entire curbside for our entire county. There’s a lot of areas in Indiana that still don’t do that. They just have random dumpsters throughout their communities for people to drive to and put their stuff in...We try to make it as accessible as possible, as easy as possible.”

Curbside recycling is simple. Items you find in a grocery store — cans, glass, magazines — go into the bin. Containers should be rinsed so as not to contaminate the other items within the bin. Can’t remember your recycling day? Don’t worry. Simply go to recyclecoach.com to set up a personalized recycling pickup calendar. Then, roll your bin to the curb.

Let’s veer a second. Plastic grocery bags should never go into the recycling bin. Equipment at the sorting facility cannot handle them. The bags get tangled in the machinery, which causes a shutdown and becomes dangerous, as workers hang from harnesses over the machines to disentangle the bags.

If you are like me and have a need to bag all or a portion of your recyclables, then use garbage bags instead, as they are grabbed off the conveyor, tossed to the side, later slit open and contents dumped onto the conveyor. Those bags then are recycled into biofuel.

The yearly user fee for biweekly curbside recycling is $48, which amounts to about $2 per pickup and is automatically placed on every resident’s property taxes.

The recycling fee is reasonable when you consider the overall picture.

Recycling is a commodity market. Thus, the prices for recycling materials fluctuate as they do for other commodities, such as hogs and grains.

The LPCSWD contracts recycling pickup, as the price tag for one truck is $300,000, which does not include other costs to operate or maintain it. In LaPorte County, eight or nine trucks pick up recyclables throughout the year. The hauler must pay a fee to the recycling facility to take the recyclables. The facility sorts the items and must quickly find a buyer since there is not enough space to store everything.

Looking at it this way, $2 biweekly sounds like a great bargain.

“It’s pretty much that you’re paying for garbage service and nothing is happening to your garbage,” Sacha said. “It’s going to a landfill where it’s going to permanently be there. A glass jar will sit there for a million years, never going to break down. A plastic water bottle — a thousand years… there’s no money to be made anywhere in that except to the landfill because they’re paying the tipping fee.”

For those items that cannot go into the bin, the waste district provides a variety of programs to county residents, such as the composting site on Zigler Road and two electronics recycling sites. There are six household 5-in-1’s, where residents can take in their household hazardous waste, electronics, appliances, shredding, needles at no additional charge. There is a nominal fee for tires.

Why the continual push to remind us to recycle? “We’re going to run out of space in the landfills, Sacha said. “Not only do they pay for the land they sit on, they have to buy their airspace so they are only allowed to go up so high and then they have to start a new section. Nobody wants a landfill by them. One day, landfills will run out of space, then where will our trash go?”

Sacha makes another great point.

Did You Know?

- Earth Day is Sunday, April 22.
- Earth Day Cleanup in LaPorte County began April 1 and runs through May 31. Contact Sacha to choose your day, location or to be assigned an area to clean. Call (219) 326-0014 or email sgeeburns@solidwastedistrict.com
- Bins are assigned to the house and not to the household. If you move, you should leave your bin.
- New owners, use the blue bin, as you are being charged for it on your property taxes. If there is no bin, call the LaPorte County Solid Waste District.
- It is universally known that white, clear or blue bags are recyclables, black bags are garbage.
- Glass, cans, paper, magazines, cereal boxes, plastics 1-7 can be recycled through your bin. No. 6 Styrofoam/plastics cannot.
- In the fall, the district offers a six-week Master Recycler program that covers all components of a solid waste district.
- Free portable recycling containers are available to non-profits and special events by calling the district.
- Looking to recycle clothing, bedding items, shoes and books? There are various containers throughout the county. Items past their prime, put in a bag and write recycling on the outside. Lost a mate to your shoe? Toss it into the appropriate the bin.
- For towels, bedding items, etc., contact your local animal shelters or Washington Park Zoo.
- Bags dropped off at Walmart are turned into their hangers. Kohl’s partners with Trex.
- Pills can be dropped off year-round at police stations in Michigan City and LaPorte, and LaPorte County Sheriff’s Office.
“If recycling stopped tomorrow, how much garbage would we have? Especially since so many things now are single serve.”

Progress has been made in turning recycled items into something else to avoid having to produce new raw material.

Since November, LPCSWD has participated in the Trex Bag Recycling program that runs through Earth Day. Collecting bags at their office and at various places throughout the county, the district is close to 500 pounds of bags, which will be transformed into an engineered lumber bench.

Indeed, Sacha’s first year with the waste district has been productive. She continues to expand items that are sent postage free to Terracycle, a specialty recycler. In the entrance to their office near LaPorte County Fairgrounds, there is an assortment of boxes that accepts items that cannot go into the curbside recycling bin, such as Solo cups, beauty/dental health containers, Brita water filters, corks, batteries and fluorescent bulbs. Points are accrued that turn into cash. Current recipients of these funds are LaPorte County 4-H, LaPorte County Small Animal Shelter and Michigan City Boys & Girls Club.

Are you looking for a way to recycle markers? Whether used by kids or adults, the Crayola marker recycling program takes any brand of used markers that can be recycled at their office. What an easy program for businesses, schools or non-profits to participate by collecting these on their premises.

She also held two Eco-Kids Camps, applied for various grants, one for a machine that would take diabetic or pet sharps, sanitize them and turn them into pellets. She is assisting the Michigan City Mainstreet Association farmers market with setting up compost bins. She is willing to work or partner with businesses or schools to implement programs.

And that’s not all. She is chairwoman of Examples of Sacha’s heirloom beans.

the Soil and Water Conservation District, and associate director for the North Northwest Division of the Indiana State Soil & Water Conservation District. She is part of Leadership LaPorte County and is involved in Junior Achievement. She participates in the annual farm dinner in downtown LaPorte, providing either poultry or vegetables.

How does she balance Sunkissed Organics with the LPCSWD?

“It’s a free-for-all...I set deadlines in my head. I know how much leeway before I dig my teeth in and actually get it (planting) done,” she said.

“It’s therapeutic working...when you’re outside, something distracts you, like a butterfly. It’s relaxing. It’s a mindless task that lets your mind wander and it resets you. It’s almost like you’re in a meditative state without realizing it. You’re just clearing your mind. Your body is all relaxed and not so tense.”

Without a doubt, Sacha has an appreciation of the area, which comes from being a lifelong resident.

“I don’t think I would actually pick anywhere else to live,” she said. “It’s diverse enough that there are all kinds of different opportunities for people to be a part of and to feel like they belong.

“But it’s also small enough that everybody knows everybody. If you don’t know them, you know somebody that knows them that bridges the gap in between. It’s just a sense of community.”

How to Help Washington Park Zoo

Did you know Washington Park Zoo loves to “up-cycle” for animal enrichment and budget savings?

Accepted items include: shredded paper (no staples); craft supplies; fabric; pet bowls; outdoor yard decorations; Rubbermaid totes with lids; blankets; baby blankets; pillow cases; towels; horse care items; animal books; rope; paint brushes; pet crates; bird houses; baby toys; perfumes; 5 gallon water jugs; blank canvases; non-toxic (childproof) paints; burlap sacks; food dehydrator; flashlights; plastic decoy animals; piñatas; parrot toys; bird feeders; reptile supplies; Lego blocks (all sizes); stainless steel clips and hooks; plastic chain; stainless steel mirror; scales to weigh animals; avian cages; manila folders (new); cardboard tubes (paper towel, toilet paper, fabric, wrapping paper); phone books; pet toys; blank posterboard; hand tools; garden tools; zip ties; soccer net; catch nets of all shapes and sizes; clip boards of all sizes; and yard tools.

Earth Day Celebration Offers Free Events

Porter County Recycling and Waste Reduction will host the Northwest Indiana Earth Day Celebration, complete with exhibits, entertainment and activities, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, April 21, at Porter County Expo Center, 215 E. Division Road, Valparaiso.

Admission and parking are free. The first 300 families receive free reusable bags. Approximately 70 exhibitors will educate about energy efficiency, recycling, natural products, reducing emissions, wildlife and nature.

Silly Safaris will present two live animal shows at 10 a.m. and noon, as well as an all-day exhibit featuring mammals, reptiles, birds and bugs. Dumpster Drummers will bring percussion and animation to the stage with two shows at 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

Anyone planning to attend should view the Reuse Fair Wish List at www.PorterCountyRecycling.org to see if they have items they can donate to benefit 10 schools and non-profits.

Thirty-five Northwest Indiana schools are vying for classroom scholarships in the School Rain Barrel Design Contest.

Thirty-five schools are vying for cash scholarships in the School Rain Barrel Design Contest. In addition, the Re-Think Art Competition & Exposition will showcase artists’ creations using 100 percent recycled materials. The public can vote on its favorites in both contests.

NB Library Community Forum

Historian Christopher Siriano will speak at the Friends of New Buffalo Library Community Forum at 6:30 p.m. EDT Tuesday, April 24, in the library's Pokagon Room, 33 S. Thompson St.

Siriano is the founder and director of House of David Museum and the author of “The House of David.” He will shed light on the sect founded in Benton Harbor in 1903 with the arrival of Benjamin Purnell, a long-haired, bearded itinerant preacher and his wife, Mary. Together, they established the religious colony House of David, which grew to more than 1,000 members from around the world.

In addition to the famous bearded baseball team, House of David built mansions, hotels, restaurants, cruise ships, factories and miniature railroads. Other holdings included diamond and gold mines, an island in Lake Michigan, thousands of acres of farmland, an Austrian resort, an art studio, orchestras and vaudeville acts.

The free library series is underwritten in part by The Pokagon Fund. Upcoming programs include: “Women of World War II,” Tuesday, May 15; “Backyard Birds,” Tuesday, June 5; and “A Spring Hoote-nanny,” Thursday, June 21.

Call the library at (269) 469-2933, follow the Facebook link at newbuffalotownshiplibrary.org or email new.buffalo.FOL@gmail.com for details.

Early Childhood Conference

Purdue University Northwest’s Center for Early Learning will host its 12th Annual Early Childhood Conference from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday, April 21, in the James B. Dworkin Student Services and Activities Complex.

The conference is intended for early childhood professionals, caregivers, child-development experts, parents and students. This year examines executive function in preschool children — skills centered on attention, impulse control, working memory and cognitive flexibility.

The keynote speakers are Stephanie Carlson and Philip Zelazo.

Carlson is a development psychologist and recognized leader in measuring executive function in preschool children. She received her doctorate in experimental psychology from the University of Oregon and is a Distinguished McKnight University professor and director of research at the Institute of Child Development at the University of Minnesota.

Zelazo is a developmental cognitive neuroscientist and investigator of the development and neural correlates of executive function in childhood and across the lifespan. Having received his doctorate from Yale, he catalyzed the field of developmental research in executive function with new measurement tools for children. He serves as the Lindahl Professor at the Institute of Child Development, University of Minnesota.

The conference will feature 27 breakout sessions. Participants can attend the sessions of their choice.

Single registration is $80, while groups of five to 12 may register for $60 per person. PNW students pay $15. Registration for all other students is $25. Fees include all conference activities, breakout sessions, breakfast and lunch.

The day begins with registration and continental breakfast at 7 a.m. Opening remarks are at 7:45 a.m., followed by the keynote speeches at 8 a.m.

Registration for the conference and the pre-conference events is required and can be completed at bbpnet.com/x15b
Fernwood Botanical Garden

A variety of Earth Day activities are planned from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. EDT Sunday, April 22, at Fernwood Botanical Garden & Nature Preserve, 13988 Range Line Road, Niles, Mich.

The schedule is (all times Eastern):
• Visitors can make a seed bomb to plant in their garden, learn about turtles at a nature station and make a recycled craft from 1 to 4 p.m. The program is free with Fernwood admission.
• Southwest Michigan Daffodil Show is from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Members from St. Joseph Valley Daffodil Society, Indiana Daffodil Society, American Daffodil Society and private growers exhibit their collections. Learn more about daffodils from top experts during a free program from 1 to 2:30 p.m.
• Kokedama: A Centuries-Old Art is from 2 to 4 p.m. Josephine Fowler of Puddingstone Farms will demonstrate and construct two to three Kokedama, using simple, easy-to-care-for plants and herbs. Learn about the technique and history of the centuries-old Japanese art, and create a tabletop herb garden Kokedama.

Instruction on taking cuttings to start new plants, care and maintenance are provided. All materials and plants are included. The cost is $40, or $32 for members.

Call (269) 695-6491 or visit www.fernwoodbotanical.org for more information.

Art Attack

Gallery receptions, artist demonstrations, exhibits, music and fashion mix to create the annual Art Attack on April 27-29 throughout Harbor Country.

The self-guided tour includes a brochure and map at businesses in New Buffalo, Union Pier, Lakeside, Sawyer and Three Oaks. The full list of events also is available at www.harborcountry.org.

“What began 25 years ago, as a chance to get together, have some fun and show off the diverse talents of our artistic community has grown into an annual cultural event,” said event chairwoman Rita Cochran, co-owner with her sister, Jennifer, of Union Pier’s Local Color Gallery.

“Perhaps the two things that most set Art Attack apart from other art exhibitions are the natural beauty of the Harbor Country setting and the degree of interaction between artists and participants.”

Participating galleries include: Sweet Pea Studio; Studio b.; Local Color Gallery; Fritz Olsen Sculptures & My Rescue Studio; The Pokagon Fund Art Gallery; Elsie Earl Studios; The Hidden Gem; Go Fish; and The Plum Tree. Many of these galleries will offer artist demonstrations and new shows.

Vintage art is featured at Blue Moon Vintage Market, Lakeside Antiques and HCM Vintage Finds. Learn how to fix a lamp at Catherine & Company, participate in a community art project at Greenbush Brewing Co. or make a spring centerpiece at Frecklefarm.

Hosting artists are People’s Property, Yellow Bird Vacations, Re/Max Harbor Country and Bluefish Vacation Rentals. Those interested in fashion can stop by Indian Summer Boutique and Catherine Doll Clothing-Fashion for Green Living.

McCollum Architects, Designsmith Spaces, Lake Interiors and Fredman Design Group will feature artist exhibits, while edible art takes center stage at Froehlich’s Bakery & Deli and Journeyman Distillery.

Music is on tap at Local Color Gallery.

Despite the unseasonable cold and wind, the First Friday Art Walk on April 6 brought forth warmth and enthusiasm for those fortunate enough to attend the many excellent and diverse offerings.

Lubeznik Center for the Arts played host to a well-attended Poetry Slam. Any and all poets in attendance were called to participate with original three-minute or less pieces.

Serving as a backdrop to the poetry event was the current exhibit, “Birds & Bees.” The whimsical show can be appreciated by all ages. Of particular note is Ladislav Hanka’s individual etchings and mixed-media works combining prints with bee wax, which present a timely and thoughtful commentary on the plight of the pollinators.

Other artists’ works are equally interesting and technically well-executed. The exhibit’s overall theme allows for a wonderful flow of artistic inspiration as one proceeds around the space. It continues through June 2.

Down the street is FADA, or Franklin Arts District Artists, which hosts several artist studios, including one of the newer spaces, studioROMA. Developed by Matt and Sharon Kubik, Friday night’s “50 Shades of Grisaille” featured Matt Kubik’s paintings and drawings. Grisaille is a style of painting executed in various shades of gray, or other neutral grayish color, and has been used by artists for hundreds of years. Approaching the studio, the hallway walls are covered in large canvas-like grisaille paintings based on various field sketches and vignettes from the Italian countryside around Rome. Inside the studio, I found beautifully rendered precision drawings of architectural elements and low-relief sculpture. Matt Kubik has been leading trips to Rome to discover and appreciate the architecture and art for more than 40 years. He has a Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Architecture from the University of Notre Dame. He completed additional studies in London at the Royal College of Art and the Architectural Association School of Architecture.

“Native Visions” marks the fourth year Southern Shore Art Association has hosted this show of arts and crafts produced by the Native American Culture at Indiana State Prison here in Michigan City. The exhibit was curated by Karl and Kathy Dennis. Paintings, jewelry and crafts fill the walls and are for sale. Proceeds from sales are split between two deserving organizations: Camp New Beginnings, run by the Episcopal Diocese in Northern Indiana, and the Potawatomi Trail of Death Association, which is dedicated to preserving, collecting and researching the history and heritage of the Potawatomi 1838 Trail of Death March from Indiana to Kansas.

The exhibit runs through April 29.

Blink Contemporary Art opened its 2018 season on April 19. Matt Kubik, the curator, Chicago artist Yoosin Shin PARK.

As each artist presents their own unique interpretation of the notion of the “page.” By using “a variety of media techniques, they investigate a range of processes, structural properties and the serial qualities of the page.”

The results are a clean, overall neutral color palette, and meditative-infused gallery space that serves well to highlight the stunning individual works. Textural variations and contrasts between the materials used to execute these wonderful pieces further enhance the overall enjoyment in viewing the works.

The Rising Phoenix Gallery offers “Adventures in Glass,” acrylic reverse-painted glass pieces and photographic works by Al Lukasec of Hobart, Ind.

Reverse painting on glass is a tricky and difficult style. Most of the time when artists paint, they begin with the background area and gradually build up colors and shapes, ending with their lightest colors and darkest darks. In reverse painting, you do the opposite because you are painting on the backside of a piece of glass or Plexiglas, i.e. working backwards, which can feel awkward.

Lukasec works with multiple subject matter ranging from landscapes to racing cars/motorcycles to outer space.

The exhibit continues through April 29.

A Very Special Community Event

by Linda Wegel

The combination and special blending of art and writing merge Saturday, April 21, while celebrating the Zine & Small Press Fest at various times and locations in Michigan City’s Uptown Arts District.

A zine (pronounced “zen”) and short for magazine is a self-published work of original or appropriated artwork, poetry and/or writing, and is usually produced in a limited edition of fewer than 100 on a photocopier or home printer. Zines can be readily designed on a single sheet of paper or produced as a small booklet. They often are the product of a single individual or small group and first emerged as an art form in the 1980s. Subject matter ranges from the comic to the highly personal.

There has been a huge resurgence of the zine in recent years, and artists across the region enjoy working with this type of medium, which they find to be timely, creative, relevant and easy to self-publish.

Hannah Hammond-Hagman, Lubeznik Center for the Arts education director, was interested for some time in the zine movement. As such, she reached out to Michele McDonnell, who lives at ArtSpace Uptown Artist Lofts, and runs The Literacy Underground, about developing a festival in Michigan City. From there, a partnership formed with her, as well as Lori Richardson at Michigan City Public Library, Alec Villareal of Myths Publications LLC, Corey Hagelberg and Sam Love of the Calumet Artist Residency, Shana Cohn of Purdue University Northwest, Kelly Knaga of Indiana University Northwest and George Kassal of the Area Artists’ Association.

The exhibit runs through April 29.
Participation in the event is not limited to adults. For the past three years, Lubeznik Center has sponsored Literacy Through the Arts “as an after school program combining academic grade-appropriate literacy and STEM standards with creative artmaking processes so students gain understanding of specific literacy and STEM standards and develop critical thinking and interpretive skills.”

Incorporating the production of zines by young students then could follow naturally as a consequence of this special enrichment program.

Outreach was additionally extended to regional artists and art groups by inviting them to participate, and to artists in locations such as Chicago, Indianapolis and South Bend.

Once the fest ends, a special exhibit of zines is planned at the NIPSCO gallery in Lubeznik Center’s lower level. It runs through May 19. The show features original zines, original art from zine artists, Harry Who comics on loan from Tom Brand and a collection of zines and self-published materials on loan from Sam Love of the Calumet Artist Residency.

100 E. Fourth St.
A free, interactive family zine-making workshop is from 10 a.m. to noon.

Lubeznik Center for the Arts
101 W. Second St.
Fred Wright delivers the keynote address at 12:30 p.m., followed by the event from 1 to 5 p.m. Thirty to 40 zine makers, self-publishers, small press and indie authors will exhibit, share and/or sell works. Artists, activists and academics will host a special panel at 2 p.m., followed by free poetry readings from 3 to 5 p.m. Visit www.lubeznikcenter.org for details.

Artspace Uptown Artist Lofts
717 Franklin St.
The Literary Underground will host activities from 6 to 9:30 p.m. The free event is appropriate for people 16 and older. A cash bar, beer and wine will be available for individuals 21 and older. Storytelling hour is at 6:30 p.m., followed by featured poets at 7:30 p.m. and music by A.S. Commer at 9 p.m.
Children’s Choir Camp

Michigan City Chamber Music Festival will present its week-long choir camp July 9-13 at First Presbyterian Church, 121 W. Ninth St.

Children ages 5-18 can attend for individual and group instruction in music from many traditions and cultures. The four-day program for children 5-10 is from 9 a.m. to noon, while youth 10-18 attend from 1 to 3 p.m. On the fifth day, students present a public musical program at 3 p.m.

Faculty are Jennifer Muniz, Indiana University professor of piano, and Kim Jones, Lyric Opera of Chicago soprano. Thomas Coe, LaPorte High School choral director, will direct the afternoon group. Muniz will accompany both groups on piano, and Jones is the performance coach for soloists from both groups. Education Director Sunny Gardner-Orbovich will teach the morning group, which concludes with a daily art period.

No more than 30 voices will be accepted for each age group. The $50 fee is due June 15. The application can be found at mccmf.org. Call Gardner-Orbovich at (219) 561-3264 for details.

Monday Musicale Youth Concert

Top scoring musicians from Monday Musicale’s 2018 Student Awards Competition will appear in concert at 2 p.m. Sunday, April 22, at First United Methodist Church, 121 E. Seventh St.

The free program is open to the public.

Monday Musicale hosts a scholarship competition each spring to recognize and encourage musical talent and accomplishments by area youth. This year’s auditions were April 8 at First Presbyterian Church. Twenty-six candidates performed selections for piano, voice, flute, violin and oboe. Certificates, engraved plaques and scholarships totaling $2,700 will be awarded to musicians in grades five through 12.

Voluntary donations to fund future scholarships will be accepted. Contact Ange Benz at (219) 874-3754 or Sue Cassler at (219) 362-1421 for details.

Spring Break Science

A group of students from Krueger Middle School in Michigan City spent spring break in the Tampa Bay (Fla.) area on a science field trip. The group snorkeled in Rainbow River with manatees, kayaked in a mangrove forest, visited Clearwater Marine Aquarium and conducted a biodiversity study of the Gulf, among other activities. Krueger science teacher Kate Triemstra coordinated the trip that also involved schools from New York, California and Washington state. Each spring, MCAS middle school students can join in the trip. Next April, the group will travel to Washington, D.C.

Walk to Prevent Child Abuse

The Seventh Annual Walk to Prevent Child Abuse, organized by LaPorte First United Methodist Church, is at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, April 26.

Held in conjunction with April being National Child Abuse Prevention Month, the event starts at the church parking lot, 1225 Michigan Ave., then heads north on Indiana Avenue toward the courthouse, where community leaders will address the importance of child protection.

Expected to speak are Family Advocates Chief Executive Officer Karen Biernacki, Take Ten Director Ellen Kyes, Dunebrook Executive Director Jeanne Ann Cannon and a representative from the mayor’s office.

All participants are encouraged to wear blue as a symbol of Child Abuse Prevention. Those unable to make the walk portion of the event can join the group on the southwest lawn of the courthouse.

Following the speeches, the procession heads down Michigan Avenue to the church for a chicken noodle dinner and community fellowship. Call the church at (219)-362-2443 for more details.

Museum Curator’s Report

Susie Richter, curator at LaPorte County Historical Society Museum, 2405 Indiana Ave., has released her March report.

Visitors came from 11 counties, 12 states and South Africa. Tours came from two Michigan City magnet schools: Lake Hills and Pines. The spring display, “Up Up and Away,” focuses on aerial photos of LaPorte County and continues through May. Several mannequins were purchased and put in place.

Donations included:
• “Operation Desert Storm” sweatshirt from 1991, Bruce Johnson.
• Sunoco salt and pepper shakers, postcard scrapbook, Patricia Kessler.
• Book, The Truth About Belle Gunness, Donna McCleary.
• Walker and crutches from Pleasant Township Fire Department in Stillwell, Joe Kapuscinski.
• Baby doll circa 1950s, Jan Wooden.
• Sale table items, Leigh Morris, Susie Richter.
• Archival information, Kathy and Jerry Orcutt.

Barry Happel will give a program on aerial photography at 1 p.m. Saturday, May 5. A new booklet, “LaPorte University & Indiana Medical College” by Leigh Morris, is for sale for $5 at the front desk. Those wishing to do genealogy may use the Fern Eddy Schultz Research Library.

Anyone wishing to use the museum meeting room can call (219) 324-6767 and ask for Janet or Susie. Email info@laportecountyhistory.org for details.
Shirley Heinze Seminar/Hike

Shirley Heinze Land Trust will host a free seminar about fungi from 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, April 21, at Meadowbrook Conservation Center, 109 W. County Road 700 North, Valparaiso.

The speaker is Scott Bates, a mycologist and researcher with Purdue University Northwest. He will describe fungal diversity in the region, and the role of fungi in nature. Afterward, weather permitting, participants will hike Meadowbrook Nature Preserve to identify species of fungi. Participants should dress for the weather.

Space is limited, so early registration is advised. Contact Sarah at Shirley Heinze Land Trust at (219) 242-8558 or emailsbarnes@heinzetrust.org for details.

Harbor Country Hikers

Harbor Country Hikers will celebrate spring with two April events, including a search for budding wildflowers and planting a tree for Arbor Day.

At 10 a.m. EDT Saturday, April 21, HCH member and botanist Arch Hopkins will discuss abundant wildflowers in Michigan’s last beech-maple climax forest found at Warren Woods State Park. The trail winds under forest specimens up to 125 feet tall and 5 feet in diameter. The hike is rated easy to moderate, with some stairs and a short climb or two. The Warren Woods trailhead parking is on the north side of Elm Valley/Union Pier Road between Three Oaks Road and Red Arrow Highway.

In celebration of Arbor Day, HCH will team up with C&A Arborists and Bison After School Enrichment students to plant a tree and take a nature hike at 4:45 p.m. EDT Thursday, April 26, at New Buffalo Elementary School, 12291 Lubke Road.

Christian Siewert, C&A owner and certified arborist, will discuss the importance of matching trees to the environment. An oak tree donated by C&A will be planted on school grounds with help from students. Siewert and BASE Director Andrea Brown then will lead hikers through forested trails behind the school and through the Chikaming Open Lands Turtle Creek Preserve.

Although membership is encouraged, HCH events are open to everyone, and children are welcome if accompanied by an adult. Membership costs $20 for individuals or $30 for families.

Visit harborcountryhikers.com for details.

YMCA Spring Open House

LaPorte County Family YMCA’s Michigan City Elston Branch, 1202 Spring St., will host a free Spring Open House from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, April 21.

The event will feature demonstrations of YMCA fitness classes and sports programs. The day begins with a free women’s self-defense class at 8 a.m., followed by additional activities every half hour beginning at 10 a.m. Participants also can use the cardio room, weight room, gyms and pool. Prizes, snacks and games for children are planned, and free child care will be offered.

Prayer to the Blessed Virgin
(Never known to fail.)

Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh, Star of the 'Sea, help me and show me, herein you are my mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x). Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light all roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me the divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in Eternal Glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days, the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted.

Dancing With the Symphony Stars

Southwest Michigan Symphony Orchestra will present “Dancing With the Symphony Stars” at 5:30 p.m. EDT Saturday, May 12, at Lake Michigan College's Grand Upton Hall, 1100 Yore Ave., Benton Harbor, Mich.

Celebrating its fifth year, the event features local celebrities competing for the Mirror Ball Award. It also includes cocktails, dinner, live and silent auctions.

Modeled after TV's “Dancing with the Stars,” the dancers actually vie for three honors:
• A “People’s Choice Award,” aided by votes before the event from friends, family and the public.
• The “Judges’ Choice Award” for excellence in dancing.
• The top “Mirror Ball Award,” which combines audience member voting and judge scores.

The stars include: Amy Bleich Heugel, Brett Lutz, Matthew and Christina Mantei, Kurt Marzke, Becky Spicer, Laura Starks, Brian Uridge and Megan Yore.

Judges include History’s “American Pickers” star Danielle Colby, Miss Michigan 2017 Heather Kendrick and Jerry Price, YMCA of Southwest Michigan development director. Serving as emcees are Bill Downey, Cook Nuclear Plant communications specialist and Twin Cities Players actor/director, and auctioneer Dan McCrery, general manager of Tosi's restaurant.

Tickets, which are $125 for table seating and dinner, can be purchased at www.smso.org or by calling the SMSO office at (269) 982-4030. Proceeds support SMSO's mission.

Sailing School Youth Day Camp

Michigan City Yacht Club Sailing School will offer its Youth Sailing Day Camp at Washington Park Marina.

The program for children 8 and older teaches basic boat-handling skills and gets them comfortable in a boat. Classes are tailored to the age and ability of each student, emphasizing the fun of sailing. Students are instructed in Optis, Club Rigged 420s and Catalina Capri 14.2s. As sailors become skilled, they progress to different boats. When skills and comfortability allow, students can sail on their own.

Camp dates are June 11 through Aug. 10. Times are 9 a.m. to noon or 1 to 4 p.m. One break is planned July 23, during the week of the Chicago to Mackinac Races. Classes meet Monday through Friday, except national holidays (July 4).

Scholarships are available. Visit www.mycysailingschool.com or contact Program Director Joel Florrek at mycysailingschool@gmail.com or (219) 561-0141 for details. Additional information is available at www.facebook.com/MichiganCitySailing School or on Instagram, MCYCSailing.

New Great Lakes Partnership

Five shoreline community foundations have joined the Great Lakes One Water Partnership, a new effort designed to help communities around the Great Lakes develop projects that secure the region’s water future.

Included is Unity Foundation of LaPorte County which, in representing Lake Michigan’s southwest region, includes: Evanston Community Foundation (Ill.); Legacy Foundation (Ind.); Porter County Community Foundation (Ind.); and The Chicago Community Trust (Ill.).

The partnership is a multi-year, basin-wide initiative supported by the Great Lakes Protection Fund and Council of Michigan Foundations. It will support these shoreline community foundations to advance water infrastructure management.

With $1 million in seed funding from the Great Lakes Protection Fund, the Council of Michigan Foundations and a team of water experts will raise more than $4 million to coordinate nearly 30 community foundations in six regions surrounding the Great Lakes, in the United States and Canada.

The Italian Teacher by Tom Rachman (hardcover, $27 retail in bookstores and online; also available as an eBook)

“Even if a man’s important,” she argues, “he doesn’t get to live by different rules.”

Pinch: “Isn’t society based on that premise?”

Art, the artist and the artist’s son. There you have it. The premise for an utterly absorbing story of a life — two lives, actually — that revolve around each other and the art world. But who comes out on top and who gets the short stick? The larger-than-life, self-absorbed artist? Or the son, always in his father’s shadow, never able to come into his own?

American-born Bear Bavinsky was having a good time roaming Europe in the 1950s, painting and womanizing — his two favorite occupations. It was in Rome at this time when he met a lovely potterer, Canadian-born Natalie. They marry, she becomes his third wife and gives birth, alone, in 1951 to his son, nicknamed Pinch. Bear has moved on by then. Oh, he shows up now and then, wife and son adoring every precious moment he gives them. But Bear is too busy with his art. He paints a series called Life-Stills that shows only parts of a body — “…a bare throat filling the huge canvas, or a roll of tummy fat, or a pricked shoulder.” None of these paintings show a subject’s face. They make a big splash in the art world, and Bear is off and running to party after party, gallery show after gallery show, always the life of the event. He builds up an army of worshipping followers, and his status as artist extraordinary is set. “His new paintings are the prize — they are truly something else, it’s said, and diabolically hard to lay one’s hands on.”

His booming voice is as big as his opinions, and both men and women are captivated by his mere presence. But Bear has big ideas for his paintings. Sell them? Oh no. Bear aims for his entire collection to someday land in a museum to ensure his legacy.

How does a boy cope with a father like this? Pinch grows up adoring his part-time father, even though Bear always has an excuse for not keeping his promises to the boy. But he always does it in such a way to satisfy the adoring son.

Eventually, Pinch finds out his father has 17 children by a number of wives. A sister, Birdie, comes to spend time with the family in Rome. It will be a lifelong relationship that Pinch will come to appreciate, in later life, because Pinch does not make friends, nor does he want to: “When young, Pinch considered human connections the refuge of those who couldn’t make art. Or is art just the refuge of those who cannot connect?”

By the time Pinch is a teen, he is sure art is his future. His father soon shoots down his ambition, when, after looking at Pinch’s first proud canvas, declares, “You will never be a great artist.”

In college, plans for art are replaced with studying languages — he’s already fluent in Italian — and at one point he considers becoming a writer. In fact, he could score points with the old man by writing his biography!

Girlfriends? Pinch has had a few, but he always manages to say the wrong thing at the wrong time, leaving him once more alone.

Post college sees Pinch finally accepting a job teaching Italian at a language school in London — quite a letdown from his original plans...

Years later, when Bear dies, he leaves his estate in Pinch’s hands. Wow, what a surprise to the other 16 siblings! They all want a piece of the action, thinking Pinch will sell all of dear old dad’s paintings, leaving them with nothing to show for. Not so. Pinch has other ideas… and wait till you read what they are! The last third of the book shows the culmination of years of self-doubt, self-loathing and too much filial devotion. Pinch has all of Bear’s paintings stored away in his cottage and workshop in a remote village in France. It’s a delicious ending…some might call it karma… you see, Pinch never really gave up his desire to be an artist — but I’ll have to leave it right there!

This is not just a story. The underlying themes are what count: art and how we perceive it, families and the dynamics that make it work — or not, and filial devotion and the effect it has on a sensitive soul. This is not just a work of fiction. It is true literature.

Booklist (starred review): “A momentous drama of a volatile relationship and the fundamental will to survive.”

Rachman is the author of two other novels, one of which, Imperfections, has been translated into 25 languages. He lives in London.

Till next time, happy reading!
